CLEVER BURGLAR BRAVES BARKING DOG, ROBBING 12

Climbs Through Holes and Over Bottles, but Arouses No One.

GETS AWAY WITH $600

Policeman Passes One House as Quiet Thief Works Within.

TEARS OUT SCREENS

Pulls Himself Up Difficult Places and Ransacks a Dozen Rooms.

A lone burglar, whose cleverness, art and daring the police say they recognize in score of robberies in St. Louis during the past two years, ransacked three houses in the West End between 1 and 2 a. m. Friday and escaped, bearing nearly $600 worth of loot, without leaving a clew.

While he was robbing one house Probationary Policeman Dawson of the Mounted District passed unsuspectingly on his beat not 30 feet away. The burglar stole articles of clothing from the heads of beds of light sleepers, rifled dressers and buffets within reach of their hands, and removed or cut screen windows without making an alarm except in the last house he entered. Even there he was able to escape with his booty without being seen.

Dog Prevents Theft.

His first victim was Frank B. Parker, a book binder, who, with his wife and 10-year-old son, Hillis, occupies the upstairs flat at 1375 Clara avenue. There is reason to believe that the intruder first attempted to enter the downstairs flat at the same number, where Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Reilly live, but was disuaded by the barking of a small white terrier. Mrs. Reilly was awakened during the night by the watchdog's growls, but did not investigate.

Instead of leaving the dangerous neighborhood of the barking dog, the burglar coolly climbed the back outside stairs to the Parkers' flat. That he was a tall man with long arms is shown by the fact that he was able to stand on the landing and remove the screen from a window four feet away, and afterwards transport himself across the space without a foothold and pull himself through the window.

Avoids Glasses on Sill.

With the dexterity of a cat he avoided knocking over the bottle and glasses which stood on the sill. Once in the kitchen, he searched the cupboard and took $2 from a purse lying in it.

Crossing the alley, he entered the premises of Francis H. Mitchell, head of an insurance agency, living at 1372 Temple place. In the house were sleeping Mr. and Mrs. Mitchell, her mother, Mrs. Mary Lee, her sister, Miss Catherine Lee, and their two children, Mary, aged 16, and Eugene, aged 14. Silently scouting through the labyrinth of bedrooms, the burglar entered that of Mr. and Mrs. Mitchell and stole his trousers from the head of his bed.

They were found in the backyard at daylight, having been rifled of a $100 gold watch and $20 in cas... Near them lay Mr. Mitchell's keys and his notary public seal. Entrance and exit were found by the burglar by removing a screen window, to which he mounted with the aid of Mr. Mitchell's stepladder.

He used the same ladder to climb the fence into the next yard, which is the home of Thomas M. Young, a head of department for a tobacco company. Mr. Young was in Poplar Bluffs on business and his wife, his 17-year-old daughter, Clementine, and 20-year-old son, Wiley, a clerk in the Street Department, were asleep in adjoining bedrooms.

Removes Screen Window.

Here also a screen window was removed and the thief squeezed himself through an opening a foot high, the window being securely nailed at that distance from the sill.

Silently the burglar entered Mrs. Young's room and walked to a dresser beside her bed. Lying on top of it he found her jewel case, containing diamonds and rings valued at $500. Apparently satisfied, he left $33 in a purse, jewels valued at $200 and $10 in Wiley's trousers.

Just as he was ascending the stairs Mrs. Young awoke. She heard, she says, the flap-flap of bare feet on the steps, and thought the negro servant girl was going down. But when she heard the click of the downstairs lock a few moments later she sprang up in alarm, for she knew someone was leaving the house. She ran to a window and peered out, but the night was so dark and the burglar's movements so cautious that she did not catch a glimpse of him.

She awakened her children and telephoned to the Chief of Police. Six policemen were sent immediately, under Sergeant Smith, from the Mounted District and beat up the neighborhood until daylight in a vain search for the thief.

WATER COMMISSIONER'S JOKE ON ST. LOUIS

CITY HYDRANTS GIVE FORTH GOOD IMITATION OF COFFEE

Settling Basin Stirred Up Too Soon, West End Water Is Muddy.

Water Commissioner Adkins played one of his neat little jokes on residents of the West End Friday, when he showed them what real mud looks like. Water from the hydrant faucets had the color and consistency of cheap coffee for an hour after getting up time.

In North and South St. Louis the water was of its usual crystal clearness.

It was explained that the supply which went through the West End mains came from a settling basin in which the mud had not all found its way to the bottom. When the water was turned on suddenly the mud was stirred up. Faucet streams were clear by 8 a. m.

NANNY GOES BACK TO HER ISLAND AND TAKES A STRANGE BILLY GOAT

Willow Ben Got Real Angry Over Loss, but Now Thinks Somebody Was "Kidding" Him.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

MOBILE ISLAND, Sept. 6.—"Bring back my nanny goat, ding you, or you cain't have any more picnics on my island." Willow Ben, who owns this island, was real angry when he said it, too.

It was such a mean, low-down trick for a party of city folks to steal Ben's nanny. They came over here with a lot of truck, such as fishing poles, minnows, dough bait, sweet pickles, lemon pie, boiled hams and snake-bite medicine, and Ben said:

"Howdy, people. Make yourselves at home."

And then they stole Ben's nanny.

LOST
ONE NANNY GOAT.
NO MORE PICNICS HERE
TILL
NANNY COMES BACK.

That fetched 'em. When Bill got up this morning he found his nanny. Funny thing, too. She brought a billy back with her. Ben thinks the picnickers were just trying to kid him and he ain't angry any more.

Beaten While Asleep.

While asleep in a room in the Paschedag livery stable, 2307 North Grand avenue, Thursday night, Charles Ellis, 55 years old, a hostler, was assaulted with an iron bar. Ellis, at the City Hospital suffering from a fractured nose, scalp wounds and a broken cheekbone, says he can recognize his assailant.

DYNAMITE FOR STATE OFFICIAL WOUNDS HIS SON

Arkansas Attorney-General Escapes Explosive Set at His Door.

POLICE FIND NO CLEW

They Say Kirby Had Made Enemies by Recent Political Utterances.

By Long-Distance Telephone from a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Sept. 6.—A dynamite cap, with 80 pounds explosive pressure, was found in the entrance to the home of Attorney-General F. W. Kirby by his 5-year-old son, and placed there, the police believe, to kill the official, blew up in the hands of the boy Thursday. Chief of Police Frank McMahon and Sergt. McDaniel say there is no doubt that the murder of the Attorney-General was the object of whoever placed the cap at the entrance, but they have not the slightest clew to the would-be assassin's identity.

The boy was seriously injured by the explosion. His clothes were torn and the pieces of the copper covering of the cap flew into his hands, face, neck and chest. Dr. F. L. Franks, who is treating him, says there is no danger of death unless tetanus sets in, a complication that will have to be carefully guarded against.

One Boy Escapes Injury.

The cap was found by the boy with a companion named Johnson, Wednesday afternoon. They placed it in the rear yard of the Kirby home and thought it was a small cartridge. Neither boy said anything to the parents about the matter.

Thursday morning when they were together the Kirby boy took the cap and struck it with a piece of iron. In the explosion that instantly followed the Johnson boy escaped unhurt.

Mrs. Blacker, a neighbor, heard the loud report and rushed into the yard to find William moaning and bleeding and the Johnson lad so frightened that he ran away. She carried the wounded boy into his home and his mother immediately summoned Dr. Franks.

Plot, Police Say.

"This cap undoubtedly was placed there for a murderous purpose probably to kill the Attorney-General," said Sergt. McDaniel to a Post-Dispatch reporter Friday morning. "It was in a position, according to the boy's story, where anyone entering would probably step on it. It was extremely sensitive and the slightest shock would have exploded it.

"We cannot give the names now of any enemies that the Attorney-General may have. Our investigations has not as yet developed that any suspicious characters have been seen prowling around the home, day or night. The Attorney-General was in his office when the boy was injured. I have not yet obtained a statement from him as to his theory."

One suggested the theory for the motive to kill Kirby is that he has probably made some desperate enemies through his recently expressed opinions on trusts, railroads, the Capitol appropriation and other similar subjects. He is a candidate for Governor of Arkansas and has the backing of United States Senators Jeff Davis and James P. Clark.

"FOR HEAVEN'S SAKE HEAD THE SHIP FOR THE ISLE OF MAN"

Mere Man So Scarce On an Ocean Liner Girls Petition Captain to Help Them.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

BOSTON, Sept. 6.—Men were so scarce in the cabin of the White Star liner Romanic on her trip here that when the officers arranged a dance under the balmy skies of the Azores there were not enough to go half around.

One bright young girl from California wrote this petition to Capt. Beadnell: "For heaven's sake, head the ship for the Isle of Man and stock up with the choicest specimens of the man to be found there."

This was passed around for signatures. Some of the older women objected because "it wouldn't do for the folks at home to know of such foolish capers." According to Miss Maud Knight of San Jose, Cal., of the 225 saloon passengers 200 were women.

RED NEGRO LEAPED FROM WINDOW IN POLICE RAID

A negro clad in red underwear jumped from a second-story window when police raided the negro lodging house at 112 North Thirteenth street early Friday morning following complaint of a robbery by Max Copeland of Philadelphia. Two shots fired by Sergt. Wade Matthews stopped the negro after he had run a block.

He said he was Frank Toran of 749 South Second street. A. McClennon, Charles Douglas, John Hicks and two women, all colored, were also caught in the raid.

Copeland told the police he had been lured into the house by a negress while walking along Market street from Union Station. He said he was robbed of $32 nothing of the robbery. Copeland could not identify any of those arrested.

RYORS WILL NOT ORDER ANY GRAFT ARRESTS

Judge Refuses to Issue Warrants on County Indictments.

NO NEW GRAND JURY

He Declines to Call New Panel to Take Up Unfinished Corruption Inquiry.

Judge Ryors said Friday that he would not issue caplases for the arrest of the persons named in the 17 indictments returned by the grand jury with its final report Thursday afternoon.

He will adjourn court Saturday, and said he would leave the issuance of the caplases to Judge McElhinney at the term of court opening Sept. 16, or to Circuit Clerk Wolff in the meantime.

Until the caplases are issued, the names of the indicted men will probably not be made public. One is reported to be a Justice of the Peace, charged with bribery; another a Deputy Sheriff, accused of perjury.

Clerk Wolff said that he would probably issue the caplases before the next term of court, but set no definite time for doing so.

"I see no necessity for issuing the caplases at this term," said Judge Ryors to a Post-Dispatch reporter. "The indicted men could not be tried at this term of court, and their arraignment can wait until the new term of court convenes. The County Clerk has the right to issue any of the caplases at any time he thinks best."

No New Grand Jury.

Judge Ryors also said he would not summon a new grand jury, as was urged by the retiring body in its report. He said he did not consider a new grand jury necessary, and that he would leave the matter to Judge McElhinney, to whom the new jury would have to make its report.

Judge McElhinney, who has been in Europe, is not expected to arrive in Clayton before the date set fo rthe opening of court.

The only person who could summon a new grand jury in his absence is Prosecuting Attorney Johnston, who was severely criticised in the report of the retiring body.

New Grand Jury Needed.

Members of the last grand jury repeated Friday to a Post-Dispatch reporter at Clayton the statement, contained in their report, that a new grand jury was needed at once.

"We were in session for a fixed time," said one member, "and that time was too short to accomplish the work which we had to do. Important things were placed before us toward the last which we had no time to investigate.

"Members of the grand jury spoke with members of the County Court about these matters, and were assured that whenever a new grand jury was called by the Circuit Court, the men chosen would be above criticism.

"The Sheriff, in the opinion of most of the grand jurors, is more diligent in the performance of his duty than the Prosecuting Attorney and his assistants."

Conditions Not Bad, Says Ryors.

Judge Ryors said Friday: "My opinion about affairs in the county has not changed greatly. I still believe, as I said some time ago, that conditions in St. Louis County are not worse than in other counties, or in the city of St. Louis.

"There is a growing sentiment in the county in favor of the enforcement of the Sunday saloon closing law, and this sentiment will compel the law to be obeyed.

"The trouble has been not that the Sheriff's office was lax in its performance of duty, but that there has in some cases been lack of preparation on the prosecution's part.

"In St. Louis County, as in other counties, the best talent is not always obtained in the Prosecutor's office. The pay does not command the best talent. On the other hand, the violators of law are usually able to employ the best lawyers."

Herpel Keeps Quiet.

Sheriff Herpel had no statement to make Friday regarding the grand jury's criticism of him for employing an attorney who, the report stated, was also the attorney for a number of liquor dealers. State Senator Gardner is Herpel's attorney.

"I think, said Herpel, "that the grand jury was mistaken in its criticism of my method of selecting juries. They recommend that all petit juries be summoned by the County Court. The juries selected by the County Court have not been satisfactory in the past. They pick names from the tax lists, and it is often found that the persons they summon are postmasters or others exempt from service, are deaf or blind or have removed from the county.

"I keep a black list of undesirable jurors, and with the help of this I have chosen good juries, I believe, though occasionally, because of necessary haste in getting the jury, or because I may not be well informed about a man, a bad one will slip in.

"The jury which was perhaps most criticised was one which my men had to

HOT GROUNDER KNOCKS OUT CUPID; THIS BRIDE RETURNS TO GUARDIAN

WIFE SAYS FAN LOVED BASEBALL MORE THAN HER

Asks Divorce Five Months After Her Marriage to Enthusiast.

A man who is charged with loving baseball more than he loved his wife has been sued by her for divorce. He is William E. Lakey, a clothing salesman. She was Miss Ruby Gruwell, adopted daughter of Dr. S. R. Chamlee, proprietor of a sanitarium at Twelfth and Pine streets. She has left her baseball-loving husband, and has returned to her foster-father.

Mrs. Lakey alleges that he not only went to see all the ball games he could, but that he spent the most of his time while at home reading the baseball news in the papers, when he ought to have been talking to her. Instead of buying clothing for her, she charges, he bet his money on ball games and generally lost it.

They were married last April, and have since lived at 3717 Delmar boulevard. Lakey had not the slightest idea that his wife intended to leave him or sue for divorce until he was told of the suit filed in the Circuit Court Thursday.

Kissed Him Good-By.

"Impossible," he exclaimed. "Why, she has never even intimated to me that she was not happy, and when she kissed me good-by this morning she was in a good humor.

"We have lived happily together since our marriage. I make a fairly good salary, and have spent it all on her, buying her everything she asked for. We went nearly every night to the summer gardens. I paid all our living expenses.

"When we were married she was working in the office of her foster father, getting a salary of $50 a week. I insisted that she leave her position, and she said she would as soon as her father could get some one in her place.

"I had noticed for several days that she had cleaned out her trunk, and that some of her things were missing. I spoke to her about it and she said she was getting rid of some old things. I suppose now she was gradually getting her things out of the house for a week or more.

"I am not going to contest her suit for a divorce. If she does not want to live with me, I guess I can stand it. And now, since she has left me, I would not take her back. She can get her divorce and go her way, and I will go mine."

Denies Baseball Charge.

Lakey denies that he spent too much money on baseball.

"I like the national game, all right," he said, "but I liked my wife better."

After Lakey learned of the suit he went to see his wife. He said Friday that she told him she had grown tired of him, and that she did not want to be bound to anyone, but to wear fine clothes and enjoy life.

Sent Clothing Away.

"She was a great admirer of fine clothes—last winter having five opera coats at one time.

"After we had been married about a month, Dr. Chamlee called me to his office and told me he thought Ruby had married beneath her. He said it was his desire that she marry a wealthy man. He told me that he was going to try to separate us.

"The only reason I can assign for her actions is the interference of her foster father."

THIEF, ROBBING HOUSE, RECEIPTS FOR PACKAGE AND RESUMES HIS WORK

Man Who Enters With Key Turns Rooms Upside Down, but Gets Little.

A daylight burglar, ransacking the home of Mrs. Joseph H. Byrd, 5854 Cates avenue, during her absence Thursday afternoon, went to the front door in response to the ring of a Barr's delivery wagon driver, receipted for a bundle intended for Mrs. Byrd, and then resumed looting the house.

The burglar had evidently seen Mrs. Byrd leave on a shopping tour and later observed the domestic depart, after placing the key to the back door on a window sill.

He ransacked the house from cellar to garret, leaving the various rooms in a state of disorder. He searched closets and dressers for valuables, but all he obtained was a diamond locket and a revolver. He left the package for which he receipted on a hall table.

After leaving the house he locked the kitchen door and replaced the key, but did not put it on the part of the sill where the domestic had left it.

THREE MASKED MEN ROB ROCK ISLAND TRAIN AND ESCAPE

Bandits Cover Chair Car Passengers With Pistols, Take Their Valuables, Then Leap From Coach.

ARMED CONDUCTOR HELD AT BAY WITH HUGE KNIFE

Trio Attempted to Invade Sleeping Car, but Found the Door Locked—Posse of Railroad Detectives and Deputy Sheriffs With Bloodhounds Are in Pursuit.

OMAHA, Neb., Sept. 6.—One of the most daring train robberies in the history of the Western country was accomplished near Murdock, Neb., early this morning, when three passengers in the chair car of the Rock Island's Oklahoma and Texas express adjusted masks over their faces, arose from their seats in the chair car, leveled revolvers at their astonished fellow passengers, walked down the aisle with hats extended and took all the valuables in sight, stood the train crew off until the train slowed up for a grade, leaped to the ground and escaped. Posses are in pursuit but though they declare they have struck the trail, they have not made a capture.

The Texas express left Lincoln after 1 o'clock and had just passed Murdock when three passengers in the chair car suddenly rose from their seats with masks over their faces and pistols in their hands. Two of the men were in the forward end of the car. The third man was at the rear end.

"Any man who makes a move or attempts to resist will be killed," called out the leader. This was the first intimation of robbery the passengers had.

Then, with one man standing in the aisle with a pistol in each hand, with which he kept the entire car covered, two of the robbers passed through the car with their hats in their hands and forced the passengers to "dig up."

"We don't want jewelry," announced the man in the aisle. "Put your pocketbooks and passes in the hats and be quick about it. Somebody will get shot if you don't."

Knife Awes Conductor.

In the midst of the excitement the conductor entered the car from the rear, and before he realized the conditions, one of the bandits stepped quickly beside him, drew a bowie knife, and, holding it against the conductor's heart, order: "Hands up."

The coductor obeyed. The third man then continued his trip down the aisle, taking all pocketbooks as he came to them.

Sleeper Door Locked.

After the chair car was robbed, two of the men tried to get into the sleeper, but the door was locked and the effort was unsuccessful.

The robbers then assembled on a platform, ordered the conductor into a retiring room after relieving him of his revolver, and when the train slowed down at a grade, they leaped from the steps and disappeared.

No report of the robbery could be made until the train reached Omaha early this morning. Then bloodhounds were ordered from Lincoln, and, together with railroad detectives and a Sheriff's posse, the chase was taken up and is still on.

ACCUSES WIFE OF TAKING HIS SAVINGS FOR ELOPEMENT

Policeman Arrests Disputants in Union Station on Peace Disturbance Charge.

Two men and a woman were gesticulating, threatening each other with clenched fists and chattering excitedly in a strange tongue in the Midway of the Union Station Friday noon. Policeman Harry Tott arrested them. At the Central Station an interpreter was found, who declared them to be Austrians. They were Joseph Matock and his wife, Shuma, and Frank Aefroon, a boarder in Matock's home.

Matock said his wife had taken $70 of his savings and was eloping with the boarder. The wife admitted that she had taken the money and that she was running away, but denied that she was eloping.

The three were charged with disorderly conduct.

MAN IS HURT BY AN ELEVATOR

Clifford Cox's Face Disfigured and His Head Badly Injured.

Clifford Cox was caught as he attempted to leave a prematurely moving elevator on the fifth floor of the Missouri-Lincoln Trust Building Friday morning.

His head came in contact with the signal box at the top of the door frame, knocking him senseless and disfiguring his face.

The glass signal lamp was shattered. He resides at 1305 Mississippi avenue.

MAN WHO LOVED ACTRESS IN VAIN SHOOTS HIMSELF

"Guess I Lose," Was His Farewell to Friends Before Ending Life.

FAREWELL TO GIRL FOR WHOM MAN DIED.

"Maida: I can't forget you—you are on my mind all the time. I am afraid if I live I will lose my mind over you. O, why don't you write to me? You can't understand the suffering I go through because I can't hear from you.

"I feel that if I could kill myself I could be near you, which I can't be now. If I ever kill myself it will be on account of you. No boy ever loved a girl as I love you. Good-by, and God bless you, Maida. H. S. B."

H. S. Brace of East St. Louis, a telegraph operator, waited vainly a week for some message from Maida Lapham, an actress, and finally, in despair of hearing from her or winning back her favor, ended his life with a revolver Friday in his boarding house at 228 Illinois avenue. The bullet entered his heart and brought instant death. Poison tablets scattered on the floor indicated that Brace had made death doubly sure.

The foregoing note to... the story of the young man's unhappy love. He had often spoken to Mrs. Alice Jones, proprietress of the boarding house, and to H. W. West, his roommate, of an actress who lived at Fort Scott, Kan., whom he loved. He called her Alice Williams, and that is supposed to be her real name. West thinks Maida Lapham is her stage name.

One of Miss Lapham's cards, found among Brace's belongings, bore this inscription: "Musical directress, Robinson Stock Co., summer season, 1907."

The shot that ended Brace's life at 7 a. m. was heard by Mrs. Jones and she sent Charles Elks, a boarder at the house, to the room. He found Brace dead.

Looked for a Letter.

Mrs. Jones said that when Brace got home Thursday evening from his work as day telegraph operator for the Big Four Railroad, he went anxiously through the letters in the mail box, turning away in unconcealed disappointment when he found nothing for himself.

After he had eaten he repeated this with the same result. "Guess I lose," he said grimly, as he went to his room. He had been watching for a letter for a week, Mrs. Jones says.

In conversation with Mrs. Jones, Brace once said: "I love Alice, and she loves another man who doesn't care anything about her. I don't understand why that should be."

Brace's father lives in Fort Scott, and his mother and a sister are at Reno, Nev. Another sister is at Sparks, Nev. On one of his cards was found this St. Louis address: C. A. Hurlen, 4668A Lacleda avenue." Hurton is a clerk of the Order of Railroad Telegraphers.

Brace was 26 years old. An inquest will be held Friday evening.

SEARCHING FOR MAN AND MONEY, WOMAN STARVED

Mysterious "Nettie Snyder" Met Pathetic Death Near Tipton, Mo.

SAID SHE LIVED HERE

Her Sweetheart Worked in St. Louis Postoffice, She Told Farmer.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

TIPTON, Mo., Sept. 6.—It has been established by a Post-Dispatch reporter that the skeleton found in a hogpen 50 yards from the much-traveled St. Louis and Kansas City road, two and one-half miles east of Tipton, was that of the woman who registered at the City Hotel, June 4, as Miss Nettie Snyder of Smithton, Mo. But the mystery of who Nettie Snyder was may never be solved.

All the circumstances indicate that she did not commit suicide. It is probable that she crawled into the partially covered pigpen to find shelter and lay there until she starved to death.

The woman was cared for a month at the farmhouse of James E. Seal, one mile north of Syracuse, which is six miles west of Tipton. On the morning of June 4 he drove her to Tipton and left her at the hotel. There she remained for two days, refusing to eat anything except two bananas. She was turned out by the landlord, and wandered fields in the neighborhood of Tipton for two or three days, and then disappeared.

Said She Lived in St. Louis.

During the month the woman was at the farmhouse she resented every effort made by Seal and his neighbors to ascertain her identity. She said her home was in St. Louis, but refused to say where or with whom she lived. She told Seal that she left St. Louis early in May and went to Smithton in search of a man named Johnson, who had possession of her money. She made her way to a point a little north of Tipton, where she was first seen in this part of the country by Thomas Hutchinson, a farmer.

This was early in May. Hutchinson found the woman sitting under a little tree, trying to shelter herself from the rain. Although she was drenched to the skin, she refused any aid. The next day she moved into the Gilroy Schoolhouse, where she locked herself in and remained for two days without food.

The woman's condition aroused the sympathies of Seal and his family and he had her moved to his home against her wishes. Her clothes had been wet for days, and within an hour after her shoes were removed her feet were swollen to more than twice their normal size. Seal called in Dr. Bridges of Syracuse, and he treated the woman for a month. She seemingly had recovered her health, and Seal, feeling that he could not afford to provide for her any longer, and the county authorities of Cooper County having refused to take care of her, he took her to Tipton and left her at the hotel.

The broad-rimmed, blue-trimmed hat she wore when she left Seal's home, a water glass with the name of a baking powder firm blown in it, a broken-handled umbrella and a partially filled bottle of carbolic acid, all of which were found among the woman's effects, positively identify her as the woman who called herself Nettie Snyder.

Told Sweetheart's Name.

"I tried many times to find out who this woman was," said Seal to a Post-Dispatch reporter. "She would answer me by saying that what was everybody's business was nobody's business. She was a woman of apparent refinement and education. She spoke German fluently, and said she was a member of the German Lutheran Church. She said she was not married, and that she had a sweetheart named Nunn in the St. Louis Postoffice. Once she told me that she lived with a family named Brown in St. Louis, and that she had a baker who was a good friend, but I don't recall the name she gave. She said also that she had an acquaintance named Thompson in Cincinnati.

"She always insisted that she had plenty of money, that her people were well to do, but she never wrote to anybody or made any inquiries about her people. She said she was raised by an uncle in Ohio. When I would press her for names and addresses of people she knew she would shut up like a clam.

"While she was here we examined her suit case. There was not a scrap of paper in it that would throw any light on her identity. She was at times plainly demented, but at other times she seemed perfectly rational.

"The woman told me she was 30 years old. She was about 5 feet 6 inches tall and very slender. She had black or dark brown hair, heavy brown eyebrows, keen black eyes, a dark complexion and a freckled face. When I would ask her what she was doing here her answer was invariably, "Money matters." She wanted me to make out a board bill when she left, saying she would get the money and repay me. She wanted to go to Tipton, because she said she could get her money easily through one of the three banks. I am satisfied she had no money, and that this was one of her delusions. She said her money was in the First National Bank of St. Louis, and I did not know at the time that there was no such bank.

Not Afraid of Men.

"I am satisfied Nettie Snyder was an assumed name. I think it was her intention to stay in the Gilroy school house until she starved herself to death. When I went to remove her to my home I tried to frighten her by saying that bad men passed through the neighborhood and might harm her. She gave me to understand that she was not afraid of any man. She had a temper that asserted itself frequently.

"I notified Prosecuting Attorney Johnson of Cooper County and the county judges that the woman was helpless on my hands and that I could not afford to keep her. They would do nothing. When she recovered her health I told her I could not keep her any longer, but would send her where she wanted to go. She said she wanted to go to a hotel in Tipton, and I took her there. I happened to be in Tipton four days later, and made some inquiries about her, but never saw her."

The woman had $1.35 when she left Seal's home. She got this money by selling several rings and stick pins.

Inquiries concerning the woman have been made in Syracuse, but, so far as known, she was never seen there.

The clothes in the imitation leather suit case the woman carried are almost rotten. The clothes she wore in death are better preserved. She was clad in a white flannel waist, trimmed with strips of black velvet running to points at the button holes. There was also a black rosette worked into the waist. The black skirt was of natty material. She wore a black satin underskirt, and carpet slippers. She left her shoes at Seal's home because her feet had not regained their normal size

CLAYTON GRAND JURY'S SCORING OF COUNTY PROSECUTOR AND SHERIFF

"THE jury finds from testimony brought before it that the violation of the Sunday law is general with most of the saloons of the county. This, we feel confident, is due to the fact that they believe themselves virtually immune from prosecution and conviction under the Sunday dramshop law, as they have been permitted to plead guilty to selling merchandise on Sunday and thus have not endangered their licenses.

* * *

"We wish to call the Court's attention to a fact which has been brought to our attention, that the Sheriff's adviser and attorney is also counsel for the Retail Liquor Dealers' Association and attorney for the saloon men who have been indicted by this grand jury, and while his services in these various directions may not be against the law, yet we feel that this selection of an attorney by the Sheriff is a subject for criticism, as we cannot understand how he could advise the Sheriff to use vigorous methods in closing up unlawful places and at the same time be the counsel for these defendants. In other words, we think that in an issue between open violation of law and enforcement of law that the Sheriff should not select an attorney whom he knows represents the other side.

* * *

"Nearly all indictments found by this jury were from testimony brought to our attention by citizens and from witnesses cited by the jury, as very few cases were brought to our attention by the prosecuting officers of the county. We are convinced that if a vigorous and systematic effort to make convictions under the Sunday law was made that the law would be observed. We regret to state that friction developed between the Prosecuting Attorney and the jury, which arose from the temerity of the jury in investigating his office, and in our endeavor to ascertain the cause of the audacity and impertinence shown by violators of the law.

"The Court can readily understand that without funds and the services of a stenographer and without the hearty co-operation of the Prosecuting Attorney, the jury has been very much hampered in its work."

"I have done my best to make arrests in all cases where I thought the law was being violated, and tried to get the club cases before the court for an early decision, though I did not succeed in this."

The charges filed against the Sheriff by "Detective" W. H. Pellom or Pelham were dismissed Thursday afternoon by Prosecuting Attorney Johnston, who stated that he had examined Pellom's record and did not consider him worthy of credence. The charges, filed under the derelict officials law, were filed at the same time as charges against Johnston, which were dismissed recently.

LEWIS CASES TO BE ACTED ON AS NEW APPLICATIONS

Will Be No "Reopening" of Publisher's Complaint Against Postoffice Officials.

According to advices received from Washington there will be no "reopening" of the cases of the Lewis Publishing Co., of St. Louis, but when Edward G. Lewis makes application for second-class mail privileges for the Woman's Magazine and the Woman's Farm Journal, his two publications that were denied second-class privileges several months ago, the request will be treated just as if he were putting the two magazines through the mails for the first time.

That his application would be so treated and that his case would not be "reopened," was predicted in the Post-Dispatch last week by local postal officials, when the first stories were sent out from Washington to the effect that the Postoffice Department was getting "cold feet."

Third Assistant Postmaster-General Lawshe, acting Postmaster-General, gave out the statement which corrected the erroneous view of the case.

Lewis says he will publish the October numbers of the two magazines and will apply for second-class rates on them. Postmaster Wyman will then forward his application to Washington, with the affidavits as to circulation, the authorities at Washington finally determining whether of not the second-class rate shall be accorded Lewis.

TEMPORARY ARMORY TO BE BUILT FOR FIRST REGIMENT

Will Have Large Drill Hall and Be Provided With Swimming Pool.

Col. E. J. Spencer of the First Regiment says plans are being drawn for the new armory and that the contract for its construction will be let in a few weeks.

Of the $100,000 guaranteed by the Business Men's League and subscribed by individual business men, $60,000 will go to Daniel Catlin in payment of the site at Grand and Clark avenues, and $40,000 to the construction of a temporary armory.

This temporary structure will be built of plaster with a pebble finish. It will be one story high. The drill hall will occupy the center of the structure and will be 100 feet long and 200 feet wide, with a wood floor. About the drill floor company rooms and locker rooms will be built. Col. Spencer says a friend has contributed $200 to a fund for the installation of a swimming pool and has agreed to induce nine other former members of the regiment to contribute a similar

AUTOMOBILE WITH 5, TURNS OVER IN COUNTY

Midshipman Fox, on a Furlough, Driving Machine, Badly Hurt.

A touring car containing Henry H. Fox of 3852 South Grand avenue, his mother, and brother and sister-in-law careened over a 15-foot embankment on the Clayton road, half a mile east of the North and South road, seriously injuring Mr. Fox, who was driving.

Mr. Fox is a midshipman in the United States navy. He is in St. Louis on furlough. He was driving the car east about 30 miles an hour, he says, when, just after crossing the bridge, he saw a farm wagon ahead. The car was then coasting under some power down the east approach from the bridge, and Mr. Fox's efforts to stop it failed.

Auto Turns Over.

In trying to drive around the wagon, the soft earth at the side of the approach gave way under the wheel of the auto, and it slid part of the way down the embankment, then turned completely over, pinioning some of its occupants beneath it.

Mr. Fox clung to the steering wheel and was caught beneath it, gasoline dripping into his face as he lay helpless to move.

Mrs. George H. Fox of 529 Dover place, his sister-in-law, was also pinioned beneath the machine and fainted, but was not dangerously hurt.

Elmer Fox, the 6-year-old brother of the machine's driver, was thrown to one side and fell into soft grass, almost unhurt.

Mrs. George C. Fox, mother of Henry, fell into the grass also and her left shoulder was sprained. The machine belongs to her husband, George H. Fox was hurled 20 feet and fell as one diving. His head and one shoulder were cut and bruised.

Midshipman Will Recover.

Henry Fox's injuries are the most serious, but he is expected to recover. His right shoulder is dislocated, and he may have been internally injured by the steering wheel, which pressed against his abdomen.

Other automobilists picked the party up and aided in recovering the machine. It was damaged $500.

FAIR MINERVA FREES HER MIND WITHOUT PUNCTUATION

Ice Cream Soda Goes Up to 10 Cents in Upper Alton—So, There.

UPPER ALTON, Ill., Sept. 6.—Its just the most horrid thing and we girls are all excited about it but we don't know what we're going to do and Mazie says her pap is a lawyer and he says its an outrage and a restraint of trade and they ought to be sent to jail but we don't like to drag anybody into court though we're sure we could win the case and goodness knows we've got provocation enough and nobody ever heard of such a thing as charging 10 cents for a glass of ice-cream soda when everybody else is selling it for 5 cents which is plenty but the dealers up here are trying to hold up the Western Military boys and the Martha Wood girls and they've raised the price and won't somebody please tell us what to do about it?

BRIDE OF A DAY LOCKED OUT OF HUSBAND'S HOME

Jesse Persley Says He Was Forced to Wed at Point of Pistol.

SAYS SHE'S SORRY NOW

Wants to See Husband, but Authorities Won't Let Her Go Near Him.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

SEDALIA, Mo., Sept. 6.—In addition to his suit to have his enforced marriage with Miss Emma Kabler of Postal, Mo., annulled, Jesse Persley today says he will prosecute her brother and brother-in-law for depriving him of his liberty. Young Persley's father, J. W. Persley, has come here to assist his son and has forbidden the bride to enter the Persley home.

Jesse Persley is 22 years old, and the girl he says he was forced to wed, after he had been made a prisoner by her relatives and driven in a buggy 15 miles to Sedalia, a loaded revolver continuously pointing towards him, is 19 years old. Her brother, Thomas Kabler, and her brother-in-law, Charles Aldredge, who young Persley alleges compelled him to go through the ceremony, are powerful men physically.

Denies He Betrayed Her.

The girl's relatives say Persley betrayed her. He declares the accusation is false. His father believes the charges untrue.

Jesse Persley was baling hay on his father's farm Tuesday afternoon, when a boy appeared with a note from Miss Kabler asking him to call at her home and stating that she had something amusing to tell him. When his day's work was over he went directly to the Kabler home, not taking time to change his clothes.

When he entered the house, he says, Thomas Kabler and Charles Aldredge stepped forward, each with a revolver held in a menacing position, and told him he would have to marry Miss Kabler. He says they compelled him to throw up his hands in order that they might search him for weapons. They found only a pocketknife.

Forced to Go to Sedalia.

Persley was then, he says, taken to the barnyard, placed in a buggy with Thomas Kabler and warned not to resist if he valued his life. Charles Aldredge and Miss Kabler got into another buggy and the four started for Sedalia.

The party reached this city at 2 o'clock Wednesday morning. Persley was taken to the wagon yard of Reuben Thomas, 214 East Main street, where he was kept under guard until the Courthouse doors weer opened at 8 o'clock. Then the four went to the office of Probate Judge Kennedy and the ceremony was at once performed.

Nothing transpired at the Courthouse to indicate to the Judge that the bridegroom was an unwilling party to the wedding. Persley says he was told that he would be killed if he made any "break." No sooner had the party reached the street, however, than the bridegroom left the others and went to the office of a lawyer and began preparations for an annulment suit.

Meantime the boy's father had heard of his son's predicament and started for Sedalia. He arrived a few hours after the wedding. So did Miss Kabler's father.

Closes Home to Bride.

Mr. Kabler advised his daughter to move her trunk to the Persley home and assert her "rights." Mr. Persley called his wife on the long distance telephone and told her to bar the doors to every member of the Kabler family.

Both families are well to do and highly respected. They have been neighbors and friends for several years. Young Persley has been calling at the Kabler home for two years.

UNIQUE LANDLORD PAINTS FENCE AND TENANTS' FACES

Daubs Mrs. Murawski and Children When She Objects to His Frescoing Hobby.

Mrs. Pauline Murawski, 1318 Sarsfield place, testified in the Dayton Street Police Court Friday that her landlord, Tony Skebeke of 1316 Sarsfield place, painted her face and the faces of two of her small children when she objected to his painting her fence for the fifth time since spring.

"I stood his mania for daubing fences for four times," she told Acting Judge Saunders, "out the fifth time was too much."

The inveterate painter was fined $5, which was stayed on payment of costs on his statement that the painting of Mrs. Murawski and her children was an accidental incident of their quarrel.

He also said that during the altercation her 15-year-old son, John, hit him with a club.

HAND HELD BY STRANGER, WOMAN CHARGES MASHING

Two Young Men Arrested Deny Charge Made by Mrs. Nellie White.

On complaint of Mrs. Nellie White of 1519 Washington avenue, who says they tried to "mash," Elmer Martin of 1515 Washington avenue and William Reardon of 1436 North Sixteenth street are held to answer charges of disturbing the young woman's peace.

Mrs. White says she was near her home Thursday night when the men accosted her. One of them caught hold of her hand and tried to detain her, she charges.

The men deny being mashers and say they did nothing to offend Mrs. White.

HOCH! THREE DAYS' GERMAN FEST BEGINS

Celebration in St. Louis Friday and Saturday, Belleville Sunday.

ALLIANCE IN SESSION

Children Will Join in Exhibition Given at Forest Park Highlands.

Fifty-two delegates, representing 120 German organizations in Missouri and Southern Illinois, affiliated with the German-American National Alliance, met in St. Louis Turner Hall, 1508 Chouteau avenue, Friday in annual convention. The gathering is held in connection with the celebration of the 255th anniversary of German settlement in America.

The proceedings of the opening session were conducted exclusively in German, and this language will be used during the remaining sessions, the last to be held Saturday morning.

William Prufrock of St. Louis, president of the organization, opened the convention with a speech of welcome, and suggested that a younger man be selected to act as chairman. Leo Osthaus was then chosen to preside.

William C. F. Lenz acted as temporary secretary of the convention, but Carl Peter of St. Louis was made permanent secretary. Dr. Hugo Kinner of St. Louis, David Schmidt of Clayton and Charles Koock of Sedalia were appointed a committee on credentials.

To Extend Organization.

After they reported, Dr. George Richter made an extended speech urging a more extensive organization of the German societies of Missouri. He said they should be brought into closer relation and that the German Alliance branch for Missouri should be extended to every county where there is a German society.

Addresses urging action along the same line were made by Dr. Hugo Kinner and Mrs. George Richter, St. Louis, and John Musser of St. Joseph, who represented ten German societies in that city.

A committee consisting of Judge J. A. Klingenberg of Lafayette County, John Musser of St. Joseph and Carl Peterson, John Elcks and Charles Matte of St. Louis was named to properly frame a resolution providing for this extension of the organization.

Before the morning session adjourned, the following Committee on Resolutions was appointed: Dr. Emil Simon of St. Louis, Judge Klingenberg of Lafayette County and Edward V. Schneiderhahn of St. Louis.

At 12:30 the convention was adjourned for two hours, and the delegates went to lunch in the dining room of the turner hall. Refreshments in abundance were served. The South St. Louis Turner Band, led by Henry Lemcke, rendered selections during the lunch.

Missouri delegates are attending the convention from Kansas City, St. Joseph, Lexington, Higginsville, Concordia, California, Joplin, Clayton, Cape Girardeau, St. Charles, Silica, Sedalia and De Soto. In addition to the East St. Louis delegates, Illinois is represented by delegates from Upper Alton, Belleville, Freeburg, Highland and Lebanon.

TWO CHILDREN BURNED TO DEATH, TWO MEN WILL DIE

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa., Sept. 6.—By the explosion of a lamp in an upstairs room the two young children of Aaron Anderson of Coleman Hollow were burned to death last night.

Anderson and his aged father were helplessly ill in a room downstairs. Mrs. Anderson and her 10-year-old son tried to rescue the children, but before they could drag the two men out both were so badly burned that they, too, will probably die. Mrs. Anderson also had to care for her 2-weeks-old baby. The family lived two miles from their nearest neighbors.

She: I decided to after due reflection.

Wealthy Belleville Man Leaves Bulk of Estate to His Fiancee.

Marion A. Stout, wealthy dray line owner of Belleville, left the bulk of his estate to his fiancee, Miss Minnie L. Rudolph. Stout died at Eureka Springs, Ark., last Sunday and his will was probated Friday.

To Miss Rudolph he bequeathes $1500 in cash, the works of Lew Wallace, the gold ring which he always wore and the entire proceeds of the sale of his ranch in Texas, with the exception of $4000, which is to go to his six half-sisters and two half-brothers.

Stout was 42 and Miss Rudolph is 40. They were close friends for many years and dates for their wedding were set several times, but in each instance postponements were made necessary by death in the family of one or the other.

WOLF THINKS JOHNSTON KEPT WITHIN THE LAW

Special Prosecutor, Appointed to Advise Grand Jury, Distinguishes Between Moral and Legal Dereliction.

Francis Miller Wolf, late special Prosecuting Attorney, appointed by Circuit Judge Ryors to assist the Clayton grand jury in its recent investigation of Prosecuting Attorney Johnston, said to a Post-Dispatch reporter Friday:

"Technical loopholes in the law itself, if nothing else, would have prevented any indictment of St. Louis County officials. There were no facts tending to show moral turpitude or infraction of the law, upon which alone indictments could be returned.

"A prosecuting attorney, for instance, may evade applying the law without violating the duties of his office, as set forth in the legal phraseology defining these duties.

"In other words, a prosecuting attorney may be morally derelict, in the broad sense, without laying himself liable to any criminal prosecution for failing to use the prerogatives conferred on him by the law.

"An indictment cannot be predicated upon any information of mere moral positiveness. We may know that an officer does not do his reasonable duty when he fails to point out how a citizen can get at the evil of which he complains. The officer can evade the issue and keep within the strict letter of the law defining his duties, by simply refraining from taking the initiative.

Can Help Break Law.

"He may visit places where dice throwing and other forms of gambling are the vogue and lift the lid, with impunity, since the law recognizes that he has the rights of a citizen as well as those of a public officer. Neither is it the function of a prosecuting attorney, for instance, to make affidavits of his personal knowledge regarding law breaking. But it is his duty to take cognizance of complaints filed with him.

"If an officer is drunk in the courtroom, or is constantly intoxicated in his office, to the prejudice of the public interests, he can be very quickly removed. You will observe the distinction. He may have knowledge of immorality and illegality, but he can evade taking action and still be within the functions and duties of his office as the law is written.

"That immorality exists in the county, and especially at Luxemburg, is undeniable. A form of immorality so startling as to involve several families was discovered at that place, but there was no one willing to take the responsibility of swearing that it had existed or was existing.

"There were several jurors fully as keen and discriminating as those who were advising them. They were capable of making the distinction between criminal and civil dereliction of duty. Their action is the best proof that my advice was based on the law. There is the rub, the law as it is written."

WOMAN ARRESTED AFTER SHE SELLS MAN A HORSE

He Says She Is Not the Owner of the Animal That Purchaser Got.

Mrs. Anna Miller, well-known in St. Louis County, is a prisoner at the Clayton Jail, awaiting trial next Monday before Justice Werremeyer on the charge of E. F. Cunningham, that she sold him a horse that did not belong to her.

Cunningham says that after listening to the importunities of the woman, he visited her place at Mokeville and witnessed a tryout of the animal. He was pleased with its performance and bought it. He says that a few days later some person told him that she had not been the owner.

Mrs. Miller first came into prominence in the county when her husband died suddenly, 10 days after their marriage by a Justice of the Peace at Maplewood.

FOLK TO NAME PROSECUTOR OF COUNTY GRAFT

Andrew C. Maroney, His Former Assistant, Is Expected to Get Task.

SURE OF CORRUPTION

Governor Convinced That Only Guide for Grand Jury Is Needed.

Following Gov. Folk's appearance before the St. Louis County grand jury investigating graft in the county, it became known among the Governor's friends in St. Louis that he would probably appoint a special prosecutor to direct the county graft inquiry.

In this connection Andrew C. Maroney, assistant to Folk in the Circuit Attorney's office, was mentioned as the most likely man for the task.

The Governor reached the conclusion during his presence with the grand jury, it is said, that all that was needed then was an expert to direct the hunt for graft. He was pleased with the character of the jury and was satisfied of the existence of graft.

"The inquiry into St. Louis County lawlessness should not stop with the indictment of a few saloon keepers and petty officials. The men higher up are the real malefactors," said Gov. Folk to a Post-Dispatch reporter before leaving for Jefferson City.

"Little fish are caught every day. It often requires a long time to hook a big one. There must be some unusually large ones in St. Louis County. There is graft out there, surely.

Scores County Officers.

"If the prosecuting authorities would do their duty I believe it could be readily discovered. I am speaking now of the regular county officers. They sit up and do nothing.

"I believe another grand jury ought to be summoned at once. There must have been plenty of unfinished work before the present body.

"I know of several tips that the prosecution should be anxious to run down.

"For example, I had it on pretty good authority that a certain St. Louisan paid $1000 for the gambling privileges at Creve Coeur Lake. I gave his name to the jury, but of course they could not get him out to Clayton before today.

"I understood also that a representative of one of the racetracks paid $1000 to one of the county officials. That man has not yet been examined.

"To my notion, the investigation has just begun. If it goes on the grafters will soon take fright and perhaps flight.

"In the St. Louis boodle investigation we frequently went many days without uncovering a lead. Clews bobbed up unexpectedly.

Suggests a Trail.

"Take the case of a saloon keeper near Luxembourg. He told one of his customers that he was forced to give up $10 a week for protection. Now if that graft incident were trailed closely it probably would lead to important results."

Gov. Folk spent two hours and thirty minutes before the Clayton grand jury Thursday. Nearly all of that time was devoted by the executive to an examination of Prosecuting Attorney Johnston.

The Governor was whisked to the county seat in the automobile of E. S. Lewis, a well-known St. Louis business man.

Accompanying him were Assistant Attorney-General Kennish and Richard McDonald, Inspector of Police.

Probably three hundred persons were assembled on the Courthouse lawn when the Governor's party arrived at 10:10 a. m.

Politicians, saloon keepers and others affected by the graft investigation made up the reception committee. They lined both sides of the walk as the Governor proceeded to the Courthouse door.

Herpel Glad to See Folk.

One of the first to greet the Governor was Sheriff Herpel.

"We are glad you have come," said Herpel. The Governor smiled.

"Everything is allright, is it, Mr. Herpel?" asked the Governor.

"O, yes, apparently," replied the Sheriff.

Factory Inspector Hiller, James L. Carlisle and other friendly Democrats escorted the Governor to the second floor of the Courthouse Building, where the grand jury was deliberating.

At the top of the stairway the Governor encountered Prosecuting Attorney Johnston.

"Ah, so you are here," said Mr. Johnston, as if astonished at the Governor's response to his subpena.

Gov. Folk said he was ready to testify at once.

To his surprise the Governor was interrogated only a few minutes by Mr. Johnston. The grand jury announced that it was ready to excuse him.

"Just a moment, gentlemen," said the Governor. "I want to ask Mr. Johnston some questions."

"Go ahead," said the jurymen.

"Fire away," shouted Johnston.

Looking squarely at the prosecutor, Folk began a series of embarrassing interrogatories.

Folk Asks Intimate Questions.

"How much are you worth? Why don't you enforce the law? How much have the saloon keepers paid you for your services?" were among the questions reported to have been put by Witness Folk to Prosecutor Johnston.

Johnston admitted that he is worth $15,000, and made it all during the last three years. He said he enjoyed a lucrative law practice. He got a fee of $250 a few months ago from the County Liquor Dealers' Protective Association for giving an opinion on the validity of the Humphrey dramshop bill.

Governor Makes Speech.

It was 1 p. m. when Gov. Folk emerged from the grand jury room. He was hungry. So were the jurors. But a big crowd was waiting for him downstairs.

When he appeared on the outer stone stairway he was called on for a speech. Several took up the cry.

"Tell us about the lid, Guv," yelled a man with a can of beer in his right hand.

"All right," said the Governor, and he doffed his hat and bowed. The crowd cheered. The Governor praised St. Louis County and declared that the lawbreakers were comparatively few in number. The way to break up lawlessness, the Governor said, is to give the lawbreakers no peace.

After a five-minute discussion of the county situation, Gov. Folk started down the stone walk toward the waiting auto. On the way he was met by Mark Gumberts.

"Guess you know me," remarked Gumberts, as he grasped the Governor's hand.

"Oh, you are Gumberts," said the Governor.

Gumberts Says He's Quit.

Then, after a pause the Governor commented on the fact that Gumberts was out of business.

"I decided that it was no use for a booze joint to fight the State of Missouri," said Gumberts. "I've quit St. Louis County for good."

Inspector McDonald and Detectives Callahan, Lally and Schenk kept close watch on the Governor during his stay in Clayton.

At 1:20 p. m. he was back at the Southern Hotel, where he met a number of politicians during the afternoon, leaving for Jefferson City at 10:10 p. m.

A REQUISITE FOR THE MEDICINE CHEST

One of the most useful things to keep in your medicine chest is C. N. Disinfectant.

This nonpoisonous liquid is known by every one as a great Disinfectant, but not all know of its antiseptic qualities.

It is an excellent remedy for cuts, bruises and all skin eruptions, as it purifies wherever it touches, thereby restoring the skin to a healthy condition.

It takes the place of carbolic acid in all its uses, being much preferred, as the latter is a dangerous poison, while C. N. is absolutely harmless.

It has many other qualities which add to its value in the medicine chest.

NEIGHBOR SAVES A WOMAN FROM BURNING TO DEATH

Mrs. Mary Mueller, 46 years old, of East Grand avenue and Whitman street, owes her life to the heroic efforts of Nicholas Blunt, a neighbor.

Mrs. Mueller attempted to light an over-filled coaloil lamp Thursday night. When she touched a match to the wick the lamp exploded, throwing burning oil over her dress.

She tried to beat the flames out. Blunt ran in and tore the burning dress from the woman and wrapped her in a blanket.

Mrs. Mueller was taken to the North End Dispensary, where burns about the hands and from her knees down were dressed. Her injuries are not serious.

ENGLAND'S SLOW POPULATION GAIN

The Increase in Thirty-Five Years Is Only About Twelve Million.

LONDON, Sept. .—Despite England's gain of more than twelve million in population since 1871, the number of paupers has decreased nearly 200,000 through a doubling or charity outlay. The birth and death rate both show a decrease in the 35 years covered by the statistical report of the Board of Trade.

The principal figures in the report are as follows:

	1871.	1906.
Population	31,500,000	43,700,000
Death rate	21.5 per 1000	15.6 per 1000

Paupers	1,237,000	1,089,000
Cost of poor relief	$47,790,000	$83,705,000

HEDGEPETH MUST FINISH TERM IN MISSOURI PRISON

Gov. Folk Asks Nebraska Authorities to Turn Convict Over to This State.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

OMAHA, Neb., Sept. 6.—Gov. Folk of Missouri has asked the authorities to return Marion Hedgepeth to Missouri to serve the 11 years of his unexpired sentence at the Penitentiary at Jefferson City. The convict had been paroled by Gov. Folk on condition of good behavior.

His arrest on a charge of robbing a safe at Council Bluffs has served to nullify the parole, and at the request of the Missouri authorities Hedgepeth will not be prosecuted, but will be forced to return to the Missouri Penitentiary.

Chief Richmond of Council Bluffs is willing to turn his prisoner over. Hedgepeth was recognized by Detective Savage, who knew him several years ago when Hedgepeth was arrested in connection with an Omaha car barn robbery.

HUSBAND DEAD, WIFE WOUNDED; SHE IS IN JAIL

Young Physician Is Killed While Riding in Buggy in Brazil, Ind.

COUPLE HAD SEPARATED

Meeting to Discuss a Reconciliation Ends in Sudden Tragedy.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

BRAZIL, Ind., Sept. 6.—Mrs. Rose Glasgo, a handsome brunette, 22 years old, was arraigned in police court this morning on a charge of murdering her husband, Dr. Edward Glasgo, who was mortally wounded late yesterday in a buggy in which he and his wife were driving.

Mrs. Glasgo has a bullet wound in her bosom, but her condition is not serious. Thus far she has made no statement, except to her attorneys, and a certain degree of mystery surrounds the case. No third person witnessed the tragedy, but Mrs. Glasgo was seen to throw a revolver into a clump of weeds immediately after the shooting.

Three Shots Fired.

Only three shots were fired, but every chamber of the pistol was empty when an officer picked it up.

Dr. Glasgo is of a prominent family in this city. He was graduated from a medical college, but had not begun active practice. He was married a year ago to Miss Rose Purcell of Terre Haute, daughter of the late Dr. Purcell, a prominent physician of Putnam County.

The couple lived together two months in Terre Haute. Dr. Glasgo then came back home and instituted suit for divorce, alleging that his wife had treated him cruelly. The petition was dismissed, however, a short time ago, and recently Mrs. Glasgo, it is said, had made several attempts at a reconciliation.

Mrs. Galsgo came here yesterday from Terre Haute with her attorney, Charles Whitlock, and went to her husband's home. The three got into a buggy and drove to the brick plant in the north part of the city. Whitlock says the couple talked of living together again, and, to give them a chance to be alone, he left them in the buggy and started to walk back to town. He had gone only a short distance when he heard three revolver shots.

He Died in an Ambulance.

The first persons to reach the buggy found Dr. Glasgo unconscious. Two physicians examined him and found two bullet wounds, one in the left temple and one in the back of the skull on the left side. The injured man was placed in an ambulance, where he died before he could be taken to an emergeucy hospital.

Mrs. Glasgo also appeared to be suffering considerably, but, when the physician sassured her she was not seriously injured, her attorney got into the buggy and drove with her to the home of one of her brothers.

Dr. Glasgo could not have inflicted the wounds from which he died, according to the statement of Drs. J. C. Gifford and H. G. Hollingsworth. However, powder burns on his clothing indicated that the revolver had been held near him. There were no powder stains of Mrs. Glasgo's clothing. Whether she shot herself accidentally in a probable struggle with her husband or whether she attempted to commit suicide are questions upon which the physicians differ.

May Waive Preliminary.

Attorney Whitlock was detained by the authorities, but was allowed to return to Terre Haute on his recognizance. It is generally believed Mrs. Glasgo will waive her preliminary hearing, which is set for this afternoon.

Mrs. Louis Branner, who lives on North Meridian street, near where the shooting occurred, is probably the State's most important witness. She ran to the door of her home when she heard the revolver reports, in time to see Mrs. Glasgo throw the weapon into some weeds.

Dr. Glasgo, it is said, never carried a revolver. However, he had been considered a rather "wild" young man, and many blamed him for the separation.

DIAMOND DIVERS WORKING IN THE VAAL'S ICY WATERS

Boulders on Bed of River Loosened With Crowbars and Gravel Scraped Up.

CAPEETOWN, Sept. .—About three and a half miles down the Vaal River from Klerksdorp an enterprising syndicate has entered upon diamond-digging operations which are probably unique. A wire rope is stretched across the river from the Transvaal to the Orange River Colony side, which serves to tow a large pont out to midstream, and from this divers are at work in the deep pools, in from forty-eight to fifty-two feet of water.

Working for three to four hours at a stretch, in icy-cold water and intense darkness, they move the big boulders on the river bottom with a crowbar, and scrape up the smaller stuff from the bed of the stream, emptying it into a large, iron-bound wire drum, which takes about half an hour to fill. This is then hoisted on to the pont, dumped into tubs and roughly sorted.

"WE'RE HAPPY," SAYS BRIDE OF RALPH ORTHWEIN

Former Wife of Jack O'Connor, Back in St. Louis, Admits Marriage.

Mrs. Cora O'Connor, known to St. Louis baseball fans as "the Belle of the Grandstand," is the wife of Ralph Orthwein, whom "Jack" O'Connor, catcher for the Browns, named when he divorced her. She admitted Friday to a Post-Dispatch reporter that she and Orthwein were wedded Aug. 21 in New York.

Friends of the couple in St. Louis have heard this, but it has hitherto lacked confirmation personally by either Mr. or Mrs. Orthwein.

Ralph Orthwein, heir to $500,000, was the best "spender" about town when he met the dashing brunette wife of "Jack" O'Connor, whose enthusiasm when her husband made a brilliant play was considered by fans as well worth seeing as the play itself. Orthwein became manager of the Browns, and he and O'Connor were friends.

Gay parties at roadhouses about St. Louis and in downtown restaurants, at which Mrs. O'Connor was the life of the evening, and which Orthwein attended as her escort, finally resulted in a personal encounter between Orthwein and the catcher. Not long after that O'Connor sued for divorce, naming Orthwein, and obtained a decree.

His Wife Got Divorce.

Orthwein's attentions to the handsome widow by decree of law did not diminish after this. His wife, formerly Miss Neva Landrum, a Kentucky girl and relative of Col. "Tom" Landrum, then proprietor of the Planters, finally sued him for divorce, simply stating that they had not lived together for several years. She recently obtained a decree in the Lawrence County Circuit Court at Mount Vernon, Mo.

Mrs. J. E. Clifford, a sister of Mrs. O'Connor, was the only witness to the ceremony, which was performed by a Justice of the Peace in New York. Several of Orthwein's family were in Boston, only five hours away, but they did not attend.

The couple have just returned to St. Louis, and are living with Mrs. Clifford at 419A North Euclid avenue, in a single flat.

"Yes, we are married, and are very happy, but I don't want to be interviewed about it," Mrs. Orthwein said to a Post-Dispatch reporter, smiling.

Most of Orthwein's fortune, it is said, has gone to gayety and speculation.

LEVY FLARES UP AT BLAIR IN A LEAGUE CASE

Criticised for Methods Con... Refers to Bible for Justification.

Charles E. Blair, attorney for the Missouri Law Enforcement League, and Assistant City Attorney Levy renewed their strife when the case against Nellie Rabe, charged with selling liquor without a license by detectives of the league, was called for the third time for trial in the Dayton Street Police Court Friday.

Blair precipitated hostilities by moving for a change of venue, on the ground that the methods of his league in obtaining evidence had been severely criticized in the Dayton street court.

Mr. Levy, with blazing eyes, sprang to his feet and protested to the court that Blair, having no status in the city attorney's department, had no authority to make such a motion.

"When your methods were criticized," Levy said defiantly to the league attorney, "the attack was just."

"We merely followed a Bible precedent," retorted Blair. "You knew that Moses sent men to spy out the land of Canaan. We're doing the same thing."

"Moses never persecuted defenseless women," rejoined Levy, "and never persuaded them to do wrong for the sake of making a case against them."

Acting Judge Saunders interposed, and declined to entertain Blair's motion.

Then Attorney Matt J. Holland, for the defense, raised the objection that the information against his client was defective, in that it did not specifically state that the amount of liquor sold was less than a gallon.

The Judge took the objection under advisement until Sept. 13.

EV-R KRISP BISCUIT

Have All the Nutriment of Wheat—Perfect Soda Cracker

EV-R KRISP BISCUIT are flaky and delicious. The flavor is altogether delightful. They are different from any other cracker made, for Ev-r Krisp are "the perfect soda cracker."

The perfect soda cracker, you know, contains more nutrition—and retains a greater percentage of the nutritious element of wheat—than any other form of cooked wheat food. Think of that!

And it's true—Uncle Sam's experts say so, and we have verified it by repeated tests. More nutritious—are Ev-r Krisps—than bread or cereals, or cookies or cake, or muffins or any other food of which wheat flour forms the principal part.

So you see, "the perfect soda cracker" means something. It means that the specially selected soft winter wheat flour we buy for Ev-r Krisp is right. It means our own special way of mixing and of baking in modern ovens is right. It explains to you why you should always ask for Ev-r Krisp, for they are ever crisp, fresh and wholesome from the first nibble to the last cracker—in the Thrice-Sealed carton. Ask your grocer, he's the man.

LEAVES WIFE HE HAD GIVEN UP FORTUNE TO WED

HAD LIVED HAPPILY

Mother Left With Child Says Couple Had Never Quarreled.

MARRIED FOUR YEARS

Young Woman Tearfully Declares This Was Happiest Time of Her Life.

Charles Sueme Jr. who was disinherited by his rich father when he eloped and married, is missing from his home at 4334A Papin street, and his young wife is totally unable to explain his absence. Other members of his family also profess ignorance of his whereabouts.

Sueme kissed his wife and 2-year-old boy a tender good-by the evening of Aug. 26, before he went to call on his mother, Mrs. Charles Sueme Sr., at 2126 Dickson street. His wife fell asleep, and when she awoke at 1 a. m., found that he was missing and that all his clothes had been taken from the house. No word has been received from his since.

Mrs. Sueme Jr. is heart-broken, eats little and says she has not slept at all. She knows no reason why he left.

"We were married four years ago," she will tell you with tears in her fine brown eyes, "and there never was a happier woman than I have been in all the time since, nor a more considerate, affectionate husband. We had had no quarrel—had never had one. He was in no financial trouble, as his books show. He simply drew his pay for the two weeks ending Monday, Aug. 26, ate dinner as usual with baby and me, kissed us good-by for the evening, and disappeared.

Objected to Leaving Her.

"'I hate to leave you here alone,' he said. 'Perhaps you had better go over to your mother's and I will call for you on the way back.'

"I told him I would wait there for him and soon after baby and I went to bed. I had no thought of trouble.

"Suddenly I awoke with a strange sense of something wrong. I looked at the clock. It was after 1. 'Surely the clock is wrong,' I thought, for my husband had never stayed out that late since we had been married. He never took his watch out with him at night, but always left it in a dresser drawer in which he kept some of his clothing. I went to look at it. It was gone. The drawer was empty. I was dumfounded. Then I hurriedly looked for his other clothing. It was all gone—everything. Then I began to realize that he would not come back.

Paced Floor All Night.

"I paced the floor all that night like a wild woman and have so done nearly all of every night since. All I have eaten is a little tea and bread."

Charles Sueme Jr., at that time aged 18, and Miss Emma Blanche Smith, one year his senior, were married by a Justice of the Peace at Springfield, Ill., on Sept. 16, 1903. They eloped. The young people met at a party two years before that and were sweethearts almost immediately.

Miss Smith was in business college at that time and young Mr. Sueme was a traveling salesman for his father, who has a large box and furniture factory at 2226 Dickson street and is wealthy.

His marriage caused the young man's disinheritance and a quarrel with his family that has wholly been patched up. Sueme, pere, knew of the attachment and his son's desire to marry and told him that if he married at his age he would find himself disinherited. Young Sueme kept this from his sweetheart and rather than give up the beautiful girl he had chosen, faced comparative poverty and his parents' anger. He took her with him on one of his business trips and they were married. They managed to keep the marriage a secret for nearly six weeks and then "somebody told."

Father Keeps His Word.

The elder Sueme was as good as his word and the newlywed husband was compelled to seek employment elsewhere. For more than three years he has been a bookkeeper at the planing mill of Fathman & Miller, at 1060 Old Manchester road. His employers speak of him in highest terms and are keeping his old place open for him, should he return. There was no discrepancy in his accounts with the firm.

"There was never but one possible difference between us," said Mrs. Sueme, tears dimming her big brown eyes, "and that was when someone tried to make him believe I had married him for the money he might inherit. He sometimes spoke of that, but if he seriously thought it I never knew it.

"Might there not be foul play?" Mrs. Sueme was asked.

"No. I don't think that. The fact that he took his clothing shows that he went of his own free will."

"You don't suspect any other woman?"

"Charley? Impossible! I know there was no other woman. We two were too happy for that to happen."

GIRL STUDENT IS ROBBED OF JEWELS

Trunk Is Two Days Going From Business District to the West End.

Miss Clara Zank of Sherman, Tex., a student at the Forest Park University, has reported to the police that jewels valued at several hundred dollars disappeared from her trunk while it was being transferred from the Stratford Hotel, Eighth and Pine streets, to the university.

Miss Zank arrived in the city Monday and ordered her trunk sent to the Stratford. Tuesday she engaged an expressman on Seventh street to haul the trunk to the university. The trunk did not reach its destination until Thursday and upon opening it Miss Zank discovered that her jewels were missing. Among the articles which had disappeared were a watch, two bracelets, one of them set with diamonds, a watch fob, set with a diamond, and a silver purse.

The trunk bore no evidence of having been tampered with and Miss Zank was at a loss to account for the disappearance of her jewelry. When she reported her loss to the police of the Mounted District she was informed that the trunk might have been opened with a skeleton key.

Detectives are watching the pawnshops in an effort to recover the missing jewels.

LAUNDRY MARK IS LOST RING CLEW

Girl Asks Police to Find Man Whose Clothes Are Marked "E or C 80."

Miss Ethel Price, a stenographer of 210 Panama Building, Second and Olive streets, has ffurnished the Police Department with such a complete description of a man she accuses of stealing her diamond ring, valued at $150, that there will be little excuse for the failure of department to get him.

Miss Price wrote a two-page description of the man, in which she told about his actions, how he swore, what brand of whisky he drinks and even gave his laundry mark. She says the mark which she discovered, though a private detective, is either F or C 80. She says he is well dressed, spends his time at Delmar Garden, has sallow complexion, heavy beard showing through the skin, black curly hair, a normal nose with thin base. She says he owns three shirts, a worn suit case marked Hill Trunk Co., Nashville, Tenn., a pint of whisky and some military brushes. She says he hangs around all night and sleeps all day.

OFFICIAL JUST MARRIED ORDERS WOMEN EMPLOYES TO BE SILENT OR QUIT

Used to Be Bouquets and Fudge on Civil Service Girls' Desks; but No More.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, Sept. 6.—Eight doleful young women, who formerly had chirruped gayly to each other daily and greeted all callers with smiles worked silently and with bowed heads in the office of the City Civil Service Commission yesterday.

The unusual calm was the result of an order written personally by Secretary Rafferty to each one of the staff, directing that gossiping or talking with strangers who enter the office must cease during working hours. Since the visiting privilege has been curtailed, the desks of the girls have been free of fudge and bouquets.

Secretary Rafferty was married a few weeks ago and the girls assert that the order enjoining silence is the first official message since that event.

BABES WEEP IN IGNORANCE FOR FATHER KILLED

Mother Prostrated and Neighbors Have Not the Heart to Tell Little Ones.

HE NEVER STAYED AWAY

They Waited in Vain for Usual Stories Before They Were Sent to Bed.

CAR HIT HIS BUGGY

Jacob A. Frey Crushed Beneath Fast Car and His Carriage Wrecked.

The two little daughters of Jacob A. Frey were not told Friday that their father was killed by a street car Thursday night and they cried for him to come home. They could not understand why he stayed away all night. He had never done that before. He had always taken them, one upon each knee, and told them stories before they went to bed.

Their mother is prostrated and the neighbors haven't the heart to tell the little 3 and 4-year-old girls that they need never expect their father to come home again.

Was Driving Home.

Mr. Frey lived at 5951 Cote Brilliante avenue. He was general manager of the St. Louis Last Co. He was driving home in a buggy Thursday night, following the south track upon Easton avenue. He was near Euclid avenue when an eastbound car, coming at great speed, crashed into his buggy. He must have seen the car coming and was turning out to avoid it, because the car did not touch the horse, but hit one side of the buggy and smashed it. The horse broke loose and ran away.

Mr. Frey fell beneath the car, which ran 75 or 100 feet before it stopped. His body was crushed.

Mr. Frey's buggy had a lighted lamp. The motorman, Leonidas A. Turley, says he did not see the horse or buggy until he struck it.

Going at Full Speed.

He says he was going at full speed and that he stopped the car as soon as he could. He was arrested and is in a cell in Police Station to await the result of the Coroner's investigation. The conductor, Walter Clatterbuck, was arrested and then released.

Mr. Frey telephoned his wife early Thursday afternoon that he was going to the ball game. She did not hear from him again.

"Silent Treatment" of Member of "Plebe" Class Angers Commandant Howze.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

NEW YORK, Sept. 6.—The "silent treatment" of a "plebe" at West Point, it is stated in dispatches received here, has resulted in a clash between the "plebe" class and the commandant at the military academy, Col. Robert Lee Howze, which threatens to deplete the supply of United States army officers four years hence. Col. Howze issued an order two days ago that unless the cadet was relieved entirely of the "treatment" he would dishonorably discharge the entire class.

A cadet, the son of a wealthy Chicago man, is the young man around whom the trouble centers. He received the "silent treatment" not only from his own class, but from the cadets in the other classes, because of a complaint he is alleged to have made when he was mildly hazed by a fellow-classman.

The news of the treatment accorded the cadet reached the commandant and caused him to threaten the dismissal of the class unless it was stopped. The cadets, it is understood, have determined to remain firm in their attitude, so that interesting developments are likely.

SHOTS GLANCE FROM TILING AND HIT WIFE IN THE ARM

Woman Is Injured in Next Room Watching Husband Clean His Gun.

While Constable George L. Glassbrenner was cleaning his shotgun, in his home in North Alton, a shell exploded and the pellets struck his wife, who was standing in the next room, leaning on a mantel and facing him. The shots entered her right arm and breast, but did not make any serious wounds.

Glassbrenner had the gun pointed to the floor when the discharge came. The bullets glanced from the mantel tiling, accounting for the lack of force when they struck his wife.

STRANGER KILLED ONE HOUR AFTER GETTING A NEW JOB

Man From Chicago Said, "If I Get Killed Wire My Folks."

Edward Norton, 50 years old, who was killed one hour after he got a job, came to Alton from Chicago Thursday. He obtained work with the Blue Grass Stone Crushing Co., and was in the quarry when a rock hurled by a blast struck him on the head.

A few minutes before the blast he remarked to a fellow workman, "If I get killed here wire my relatives in Chicago." He did not give his street address.

PAIR DEAD IN RIVER IN EACH OTHER'S ARMS

Man and Woman Taken From Water North of Muscatine, Io.

By Long Distance Telephone to the Post-Dispatch.

MUSCATINE, Io., Sept. 6.—The bodies of a man and a woman were found floating in the river near here yesterday and the conditions were such, it is thought, to be a case of murder and suicide.

The man's arms were clasped tightly about the woman's waist and the hands were locked behind as if he had grasped his victim and jumped into the river with her.

Nothing was found on either body that would lead to identification. The woman was apparently about 28 years old. She was of heavy build and somewhat prepossessing. Her clothes were of good material and well made. She wore a dark skirt, a white silk waist, low shoes and an up-to-date hat. The man was about 35 years old and poorly dressed. It is thought he may have been a tramp or day laborer.

No report has been received here as to anyone being missing and the bodies will be held here for a few days in the hope that someone will identify them. The inquest was held this morning and adjourned after the known facts were told.

The bodies were first seen about five miles north of this city yesterday afternoon. They were floating down the river past an island frequented by picnic parties. Some of the merrymakers saw them and Charles Bernard and Thomas Hocke rowed out in a skiff and brought them to shore. The body of the woman was entirely submerged, but that of the man was partly above water. The back of his shirt was dry, as if he and his victim had been in the water for some time and the sun had dried his exposed clothing.

When brought to shore the man's hands were so firmly gripped around the woman it required much effort to unclasp them. The bodies were brought to Muscatine and turned over to the Coroner.

The theory is advanced that the pair were accidentally drowned from a boat or fell into the river. A suicide pact has been suggested, but as no one knows anything about the tragedy all theories are worthless.

HUSBAND SAVES WIFE FROM FIRE

He Finds Her Overcome by Smoke and Carries Her to Safety.

T. P. O'Connor, a marine engineer, rescued his wife from probable death by fire at the rooming house she conducts at 1605 Olive street.

O'Connor left the house Thursday after supper for a walk and on his return could not find his wife. She had been acting strangely, he says, and he feared something might have happened to her. He discovered that the door of her room was locked, and that smoke was coming over the transom.

O'Connor kicked in a panel and found that a coal oil lamp had been overturned and the furniture set on fire. He carried his wife to safety. She was overcome by the smoke and was taken to the City Hospital. She was slightly burned.

MILLIONAIRE'S SON WEDS WORKING GIRL FROM MILL

Their Romance Begun in a Cotton Factory Culminates in an Elopement.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WORCESTER, Mass., Sept. 6.—Emulating the example of his brother, who a few months ago made a hurried trip to Providence with his prospective bride and was married, William Sumner Lapworth, youngest son of William Lapworth, the Hopedale millionaire, journeyed to the Rhode Island Gretna Green yesterday with Miss Margaret Phillips, an operative of the mill. They returned as Mr. and Mrs. Lapworth.

Society and the populace generally expressed great surprise on learning the scion of a wealthy house had wooed and won a working girl, but those who have noted the growing affection between the two young people were satisfied a trip to a minister would be the outcome.

Despite his wealth and his father's position, young Lapworth is a skillful mechanic and is employed regularly at the mill. One day a few months ago the machine at which Miss Phillipps worked was out of order. Lapworth was called to fix it, and he was struck by the beauty of the young woman.

The bridegroom is 26 years of age. Before his marriage he lived with his parents. The bride is the daughter of William Phillips. She is several years younger than her husband. Clarence A. Lapworth, a brother of the bridegroom, married Miss Spicer of South Milford some months ago.

LOOKING FOR $17,000 IN GEMS

Police Also Want Three Men for Salt Lake Jewel Robbery.

The St. Louis police are on the lookout for three expert crooks and are incidentally trying to recover $17,000 worth of diamond rings and other jewelry for which a reward of $1000 has been offered by John Daynes & Sons, jewelers, of Salt Lake, Utah.

The jewels were stolen from the company's safe on the night of April 29. Pictures of three well-known crooks have been forwarded to the St. Louis police.

The trio is suspected of the job and it is believed they may have come in this direction to dispose of their plunder.

RECIPE FOR ROSY CHEEKS.

A lady, prominent in social circles just returned from a sojourn in Europe, brings back with her a valuable skin food recipe, which she says is in general use among the society women of France, who have an international reputation for their exquisite complexions. The recipe is as follows:

Two ounces of Rose Water; one ounce Spirits of Cologne; four ounces Sartoin (crystallized).

Put the Sartoin in a pint of hot water (not boiling), soft water being preferable. When it is dissolved and cooled, strain through a fine cloth, add the Rose Water and Spirits of Cologne. This perparation to be applied twice a day or oftener and massaged thoroughly into the skin and if adhered to persistently is said to produce wonders even on the worst complexion or roughest skin. It is an inexpensive mixture and the ingredients can be gotten from any well stocked drug store, the above formula making enough to last quite a while, and sufficient for a very thorough trial.

HAGUE IS NOT FAST ENOUGH FOR PRESIDENT

Roosevelt Will Have Peace Conference of His Own in Washington.

By Wire From the Washington Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 6.—President Roosevelt is not satisfied with the amount of work done or likely to be done in the interest of peace by the conference at The Hague, so he is going to have one of his own.

Its delegates are to be ambassadors accredited to him by the several powers. It is possible that ministers may be taken in, but that is not settled. Not many of them represent nations with a stick large enough to make them factors in settling world problems.

The underlying idea is that the ambassadors, by informal talks among themselves, will be able to come to an understanding about questions in which all the big powers are interested.

Disarmament, limitation of armament, new rules of war—the so-called larger questions which the conference at The Hague is handling—will not be touched. Disputes are not likely to arise on account of them.

Some of the Problems.

The application of the Monroe Doctrine, the exercise of so-called rights by Japan over Korea, Japan's interest in China, as distinguished from the rights of other powers, the Congo question and matters of live interest in diplomatic exchanges are the things the ambassadors are expected to talk about.

A meeting of ambassadors the latter part of the month or early in October will be held to arrange for formal meetings. At the first meeting the ambassadors will be addressed either by the President or by Secretary Root, who will explain why they have been called together. After that the President will invite them to arrange for further meetings.

So far as can be now seen nothing in the way of treaties will result. There is no such intention. It is to be merely a getting together to express views and have an informal understanding among the powers about what they would do in certain contingencies.

The greatest of these contingencies is the death or abdication of the Empress Dowager of China. When that happens it is feared there will be trouble, either on account of China's jealousy of Japan or Chinese hatred of the Manchu dynasty.

No Trouble in China.

Reports from China indicate unrest and a determination among some Chinese statesmen to force to the front questions of Japan's right to the Kwanto region. Others talk of expelling the Manchu dynasty and this talk is not mere vaporing. The southern viceroys, notwithstanding the inhibition on the importing of arms, have organized armies and are potential troublemakers.

This peace conference will be the result of President Roosevelt's initiative instead of the initiative of the German Kaiser. It was the latter who suggested the conference between Japan and Russia, which ended the Russo-Japanese conflict.

Ambassador Bryce has been taken into the President's confidence and intrusted with a message to King Edward, who is reported to be willing to make the plan good by authorizing Ambassador Bryce to act for him in the manner indicated.

That Ambassador Jusserand of France and Sternburg of Germany agree to the scheme goes almost without saying. The former is a member of the tennis cabinet and the latter is riding instructor for the Roosevelt boys.

Baron Mayer des Planches of Italy, as dean of the ambassadors, probably will preside over the meetings.

Roses $70 at Pool.

Lon Williams came to St. Louis from English, Ind., with $70, in search of work. When he got off the train Thursday two men greeted him, said they knew him, invited him to have a drink, and then to play pool. Williams never heard of confidence men and when they said they would bet $10 a game, "just for fun," he acquiesced. He and the $70 were soon parted.

The legitimate PAID circulation of the Post-Dispatch in St. Louis and its Suburbs is greater than that of ALL other English Dailies COMBINED.

GIRL DROPS DEAD IN SKATING RINK

Exercise Brings on Old Heart Trouble and She Falls Dead.

An inquest will be held Friday over the body of Miss Bertha Schmidt, 20 years old, of 3500 North Broadway, who dropped dead from heart failure while skating at the Forest Park Highlands rink Thursday night. Miss Schmidt suffered from heart trouble several years ago and although she skated very little during the evening, the slight exercise was sufficient to bring on the old trouble and cause her death.

Miss Schmidt, who was the daughter of Adam Schmidt, a saloon keeper of 3500 North Broadway, was accompanied by her sister, Emma, and Orin Crossly of 1472 Clara avenue. Knowing that her weak heart made violent exercise dangerous, she spent the early part of the evening as a looker-on.

About 9 o'clock, however, the merriment of the whirling skaters lured her to the floor. She had made the circuit once and paused for a moment at the starting point, when suddenly she fell unconscious to the floor. She was pronounced dead from heart disease by Dr. J. E. Hennerich of 3603 Utah place, upon his arrival a few minutes later.

Through a misunderstanding on the part of the driver of the city ambulance, the body was conveyed rapidly to the City Hospital. After a second examination at the hospital, the body was removed to the Morgue.

MAKES A GAS AND IS OVERCOME

Man Turns Water on Red Hot Clinkers and May Die.

Jasper Bonner, 24 years old, of 900 Morgan street, Thursday night, while cleaning a furnace in the Merchants' Ice and Coal Co.'s plant on Finney avenue, between Newstead and Pendleton avenues, turned a hose on some red-hot clinkers, causing an escape of steam and gas which overcame him.

In addition to being suffocated by the gas, Bonner was badly scalded by the steam.

He was hastened to the City Hospital, where it was stated his condition was very serious.

MEN FIGHT FOR LIFE ON CLIFF 100 FEET HIGH

Workhouse Prisoners Below Cheer Negro in Battle With Guard.

MUTINY THREATENED

Four Hundred Men Are Kept in Line at Points of Rifles.

FIGHTER OVERPOWERED

Aid Comes to Officer as He Is Forced to Quarry Brink.

Locked in a death grapple on the brink of a cliff, Workhouse Guard Lawrence Walsh and Leroy Jordan, a lithe mulatto, struggled to gain the mastery, while 400 prisoners 100 feet below in the quarry watched the battle, under the drawn rifles of other guards.

"Take his gun!" "Throw him over!" arose the shouts of the excited rock-breakers as they beheld the glimmer of possible escape if the negro should hurl the guard over the precipice. Jordan was slowly tugging the guard toward the fatal drop.

As the swaying figures drew inch by inch nearer the edge, confusion began to take the place of nerve among the riflemen who covered the long file of shackled convicts on the march up a steep path to their Thursday noon meal in the Workhouse.

Mutiny Was Feared.

Quick to take advantage of the excitement, the prisoners began feints to disconcert the guards, whose attention was divided between the perilous position of their comrade and the imminence of a mutiny in which 400 desperate men, with a sudden onslaught, might have overcome 20 sentinels.

Hurrahs came from the quarry depths as Walsh braced his toes in grass tufts for a last stand against the mad mulatto, who seemed bent on dashing his adversary and himself to the jagged rocks below.

"Now you've got him!" "Over with him," shouted the 400. The straining bodies on the cliff paused amid the desperate combat, as if gathering force for the last effort. Their arms were seen to take a fiercer embrace, the heads were bent like wrestlers, to watch for the trick that might either end in prison for the negro or a mangled death for both.

Negro Battles Hard.

Only lately released from servitude in the same quarry, the mulatto exerted the almost superhuman strength born of despair. Walsh was fighting for his life. The tragic intensity of that final pause sent a hush to the fascinated prisoners which saved Walsh and brought nerve back to the guards.

James Fleming, a gate guard, left his picket box at the Workhouse gate and sprinting for 100 yards along the brow of the precipice came to the relief of Walsh in the nick of time. A few seconds more and nothing would have prevented the intertwined bodies from toppling headlong down the sheer wall to the rocks.

Revolver in hand, Fleming reached forth and seizing Walsh, by a sudden jerk, landed both men upon their backs on the sloping bank that ended in the brink of the chasm. Jordan struggled to break the embrace in an effort to escape. Walsh dashed the muzzle of his revolver through the cheek of the prisoner.

Prisoner Is Handcuffed.

The blow dazed him. Walsh and Fleming snapped the handcuffs on their prisoner. The prisoners obediently resumed the order to march. While they were partaking of dinner Jordan was led before Superintendent Dawson. He attempted to explain his conduct, but the big prison head refused to listen to him. Guard Walsh said that Jordan had invaded a forbidden road leading down to the quarry and from a height had tossed something to the prisoners below. When he file started up the road for dinner Jordan had kept pace with them along the upper road, where he was intercepted by Walsh and placed under arrest. His resistance led to the battle on the edge of the cliff.

After Jordan was taken to the Wyoming Street Police Station, where charges of trespassing and resisting arrest were placed against him, he complained of being ill and was removed to the cells at the City Hospital. There he said that he had only been tossing money to the prisoners, but admitted his error in fighting the guard.

Fears "That Prison."

"I'll take this check with me and never do anything wrong again, mister, if they only don't send me back to that prison," he moaned. "I was a fool, but I must got crazy when I thought they might lock me up again. I am a married man and have children. Oh, what a fool I've been."

Jordan has been employed as a housemman at 4143 Lindell boulevard.

CHOP SUEY PLACES MUST GET DRAMSHOP LICENSES

Excise Commissioner Mulvihill Says They Are Now a Substitute for Saloons.

Following the hearing of the case against George Sunder of 510 Market street, charged with violating the Sunday closing law in a chop suey shop above his saloon, Excise Commissioner Mulvihill said the lid would be put on all chop suey places.

Only those which take out dramshop licenses will be allowed to remain open. Mr. Mulvihill said that after the closing of the wine rooms, at least twenty-five saloon men applied for permission to operate chop suey places.

Sunder was acquitted, but was ordered to cease serving drinks by means of a dumb waiter from the saloon below.

WILTON LACKAYE ENTHUSIASTIC OVER ROLE IN "THE BONDMAN"

WILTON LACKAYE IN "THE BONDMAN"

Believes Rugged Character of Jason Gives Him Chance of Lifetime.

Wilton Lackaye, who is expected to make the biggest hit of his career as Jason in "The Bondman," which begins its American season at the Olympic Theater in this city the week beginning Sunday, Sept. 15, went to New York last week to confer with William A. Brady concerning the play's production.

This return to the metropolis marked the close of the seven-weeks' vacation spent at his summer home at Shelter Islands Heights with his wife, his baby and his dog, resting in preparation for the season's work.

Lackaye is tremendously enthusiastic over the Jason role, the almost heroic ruggedness of which makes a powerful appeal to him. In some respects it is the strongest part he has ever had, and its big melodrama possibilities, made entirely legitimate by the Hall Caine story, of which Jason is the central figure, offer unusual opportunities for a memorable stage success. The congeniality of the role makes it certain that Lackaye will put his best efforts into its portrayal.

ATHLETE ON BACK SAVES HIS WIFE

Needle, a Tailor, Intercepts Woman Flying Through the Air.

Isadore Needle, a tailor, 4628 Olive street, demonstrated his presence of mind and athletic ability, when he and his wife were thrown from his buggy in an automobile collision in Forest Park. While flat on his back he caught his wife as she fell and probably saved her from serious injury. She was thrown headfirst.

Needle escaped with slight bruises. The collision occurred Thursday night, when the chauffeur of a big touring car attempted to pass the buggy at a narrow point in the roadway. The police did not learn his name or the number of his machine. The rig was smashed; the horse broke loose, ran away and was later captured in the park by a mounted policeman.

Youth Told Boy What to Testify in Murder Trial.

On a charge of prompting Albert McBride, aged 13, to testify falsely in the trial of Carroll Cain, accused of killing his father with a baseball bat, Edward Gerlach, aged 22, of 215 Barton street, was sentenced Thursday by Judge Rodgers of the Court of General Sessions to 10 days in Jail.

Albert McBride, on cross-examination, admitted he was untruthful in his testimony and said that Gerlach had coached him as to what to say. Recently Gerlach got out of Jail, where he served a term for petit larceny.

SHIP IN QUEST OF A NEW LAND LOST IN ARCTIC

Duchess of Bedford Fills and Sinks; Crew Thought to Have Perished.

ONE IS AN ILLINOISAN

Harvard Man Brings News of Disaster to Hazardous Expedition.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

ATHABASKA, Can., Sept. 6.—The schooner Duchess of Bedford, sent out by the Anglo-American Arctic expedition to find a new continent north of the McKenzie River, is lost in the frozen waters of the Arctic Ocean, and three members of the party are thought to have perished.

The news of the disaster was brought here by Alfred Harrison, who arrived on the steamer Midnight Sun, after having spent two years in the Arctic Circle.

Mr. Harrison said Ernest Stefanson of Harvard University, after whom the expedition had been called, brought the news to Herschell Island.

The missing men are Capt. Ejnar Mikkalson, a Dane; E. De Koven Leffingwell of Chicago and J. M. Marks. They left the ship in February with 60 days' provisions for the supposed land to the north, and had been gone 70 days and no news had been received from them. One of their teams of dogs had returned, and it is feared the party will never be heard from again.

Thinks the Ship Sank.

The Duchess of Bedford, Stefansson thought, had sunk. The ship had filled with water, but they had been able to remove everything of value to the main shore.

The expedition set sail from Victoria, B. C., May 22, 1906, under the joint command of Capt. Mikkelsen and Mr. Leffingwell. The Duchess of Bedford was originally a sealing schooner, and was chosen by Capt. Mikkelsen on account of her small size and unusual stoutness of build, her tonnage being but 66 tons register.

The chief aim of the expedition was to determine whether land exists in the vast unexplored section of the Arctic Ocean lying above Alaska and north of Banks Land. The region comprises about 150,000 square miles, and has been always described as a sea of ice. Indications, however, go to show that a big body of land exists in this region.

Indications of Land.

Eskimos of Prince Albert Land and Northern Alaska points state this to be the case, while the direction of the prevailing ocean currents gives rise to the opinion that some body lies in their path.

It is also a well-established fact that flocks of migratory birds travel poleward from the Siberian, Alaskan and northern mainlands annually, and the natural inference is that they are making for land.

Should such land be discovered, its ownership will be defined by the 142d meridian, which settles the British and American claim.

Ten in the Party.

Besides the two commanders, the exploring party consisted of Ejnar Ditlevsen, a zoologist and noted European painter of animals; V. Stefaussen, ethnologist, and Dr. George Howe, M.D., physician and scientist. Capt. Mikkelsen and Mr. Leffingwell devoted themselves to surveys and geological work. A sailing master, three seamen and a cook made up the total number of the vessel's company, ten in all.

Mr. Leffingwell's father, a prominent educator of Knoxville, Ill., was very much interested in the polar expedition and subscribed several thousand dollars to the project. President Roosevelt also expressed great confidence in the theory that there is a body of land north of the McKenzie.

LAWYER DARES MEDIUM TO GIVE COURT SEANCE

Mrs. Pepper-Vanderbilt Inclined to Accept Lawyer's Challenge.

BUT JUDGE STOPS HER

Central Figure in Spook-Lunacy Case Relates "Bright Eyes'" History.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Sept. 6.—"I call upon you to produce the spirit 'Bright Eyes' here and now in this courtroom. Can you and will you?"

This was the challenge hurled at Mrs. Pepper-Vanderbilt in Brooklyn's famous spook case.

"I don't know," she calmly answered. "I might try. This is hardly the place for a demonstration. But"—

The question and answer were the climax of the day's session of the lunacy proceedings by which Edward W. Vanderbilt's daughter, Minerva, seeks to have him adjudged incompetent to manage his large property, over which she alleges Mrs. Pepper-Vanderbilt has gained undue control by means of the "spirit communications" of "Bright Eyes." It was the medium's first appearance before the commission.

As she made answer Mrs. Pepper-Vanderbilt glanced about her as if pondering whether conditions in the courtroom were favorable for a seance. Then came a volley of objections from Vanderbilt's counsel. Commissioner Ketcham sustained the objections.

"Can you and will you give us a message from the departed Mrs. Vanderbilt?" Lawyer Rosenberg continued.

She Did Not Know.

The witness, with eyes half closed, fixed her gaze upon the young lawyer for a few seconds. Every one in the courtroom leaned forward expectantly.

"I don't know," she replied in a low tone, "whether I could or not."

There was a dead silence in the courtroom. A window shade snapped up with a loud bang. Many of the spectators and some of the jurymen jumped a little, but not a lash quivered on the lids of the woman's pale gray eyes. The commissioners stopped counsel's endeavor to secure an exhibition of Mrs. Pepper-Vanderbilt's 'spirit control," saying no proper foundation had been laid for such evidence.

Mrs. Pepper came to the courtroom accompanied by Fred Libby of Wakefield, Mass., and his sister. Libby is the young architect who has been mentioned in the case as an intimate friend of Mrs. Pepper-Vanderbilt. Mr. Vanderbilt was with them.

"I came here unsolicited to aid my husband," said the medium. "I was not forced to come, and I am certainly not afraid."

Mrs. Vanderbilt, who is tall and stout, wore a tightly fitting black dress and black gloves. Her features and eyelids are heavy.

Had to Confer About Her.

Lawyers Roseberg and Arnstein, representing the petitioner, did not know just what to do with Mr. Vanderbilt's "spirit-controlled" wife, and they asked for an early adjournment, frankly stating they wanted to hold a council of war.

Lawyers Griffing and Sturgis for Mr. Vanderbilt, did not call the medium so Mr. Rosenberg was compelled to summon her as his own witness, which limited him to direct questions, although he was most anxious to cross-examine.

Mrs. Pepper-Vanderbilt told the story of her life up to the time of her marriage to Mr. Pepper, when she was 17 years old. She is 40 now, she testified. Her occupation she gave as pastor of the First Spiritualist Church, Brooklyn.

The "Bright Eyes" letters, written by Vanderbilt to her, were exhibited, also some phonography. She said they were stolen from her desk by persons who broke into her house one Sunday evening. "An influence," Mrs. Pepper-Vanderbilt said, warned her of the robbery while she was conducting services at the spiritualist church.

Miss Darrell, the "blue mystery," first gave her an idea that such a thing could happen, the witness said. She vigorously denied having written letters from which were read "Vanderbilt is always talking about his daughter's welfare, but I hope to see them split apart soon," "and I don't know just how to put on the finishing touches."

She Describes "Bright Eyes."

Describing her work with the spirits the witness said:

"Bright Eyes is supposed to be an individual who once lived in a material body, but who now has passed over and uses my organism to communicate between this world and the one beyond. I first realized her in 1885, when a party of us, mostly non-spiritualists, were seated about a table. We received a 'table tipping.' I at once became unconscious. Afterwards they told me that a spirit had talked through me, saying that her name was 'Bright Eyes.' I knew nothing of what I had said while I was unconscious. I don't know what happens when 'Bright Eyes' is in possession of me. I don't know whether she is the same Mrs. Williams' Bright Eyes or not."

"Do you remember telephoning as 'Bright Eyes' to Mr. Vanderbilt?" was asked.

"I do not. Persons in the room with me at the time said that my voice altered. I may have become unconscious, but I never realize those trances. I have telephoned as 'Bright Eyes' to a number of people, so I have been told. I know I was under control, because afterward they told me I had informed them about affairs of which I, as myself, knew nothing. If something happened to any one, and they felt badly they could call me up and talk to 'Bright Eyes.'"

Society

Miss Margaret Shields and Mr. Charles Kohl, whose engagement was announced early in the summer, have settled on their wedding date.

The marriage will take place Oct. 5 at the Jefferson Hotel, very quietly, in the afternoon, and will be witnessed by members of the two families and no other guests.

Miss Shields has decided to have no bridemaids, nor will the bridegroom be assisted by a best man. Every effort will be made to have the affair very simple and informal.

Miss Shields will wear a smart traveling costume and immediately after a dinner Mr. Kohl and she will depart for a tour of the far West. They expect to go to the Pacific Coast and to spend six weeks or more in California and adjacent states.

Miss Shields, with her brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Shields, removed from the Washington, where they have spent the summer, to the Jefferson Friday.

A SHORTHAND CHALLENGE

Since certain of our esteemed competitors are now attempting to discourage young people from enrolling in Brown's Business College because of the alleged inferiority of the Shorthand System we teach (The Gregg), I hereby challenge any and all of them to a practical test of systems. I ask each to select any student he has taught during the past five years, who was not a stenographer previously, to meet in competition a student I have taught within the terms specified, who was not a stenographer previously. Now, gentlemen, here is a chance to show up your systems. Let us meet and arrange details. Address

JUDGE POSTPONES WEDDING A YEAR

Sentences Father Soon to Marry to Twelve Months for Deserting Children.

William Reilly's plea that he intended providing a stepmother in November for his two little daughters, whom he was charged with abandoning, did not avail him with Acting Judge Porter in the Court of Criminal Correction Friday.

"You'll have to postpone that wedding a year," remarked the Judge, as he imposed a sentence of 12 months in the Workhouse.

The warrant against Reilly as sworn out by Probation Officer A. C. McDonald, who rescued the two children—Lillian, aged 10, and Bertha, aged 9—from starvation.

Policemen on the beat complained that the father left them alone for days at a time without food and that for eight months he had systematically neglected them.

Testimony to this effect was given by Martin Hannerman, 2010 Shenandoah avenue, and Nicholas Aubemann, 2002½ Gravois avenue, neighbors of Reilly.

The children are still at the House of Detention. What provision will be made for them while their father is serving his sentence has not been decided.

Reilly lives at 3002 Gravois avenue. His wife committed suicide a year ago in despair, according to a statement before she died, over his bad habits.

NURSE DIDN'T LOVE BLOSSOM, SAYS HIS UNCLE

Fatigue of Travel Caused Nervous Breakdown on Train, He Thinks.

CAN'T SHARE ESTATE

Father's Property, in His Charge, Administered Only for Family.

The theory that Miss Sallie Taylor, a trained nurse, 45 years old, became insane through love of the late Howard A. Blossom is termed "preposterous" by Henry M. Blossom, his uncle, dean of the fire insurance business in St. Louis.

While he was averse to discussing the startling rumors which have come from New York, where Miss Taylor is in Bellevue Hospital for mental treatment, Mr. Blossom said Friday that Howard Blossom, until the hour of his death, lived with his wife and child at 829 Union avenue, that Mrs. Blossom is still at the family home there and that their domestic relations were ideal.

"That Miss Taylor may have been shocked by the unexpected death of my nephew may well be true," he said Friday. "That she was greatly fatigued and distraught by the quick trip from New York, and by the extreme heat of the day on which she attended the funeral, is conceivable. But that love had anything to do with the unsettling of her mind seems to be to be a forced and unwarranted conclusion.

"So far as I know, Miss Taylor never attended my nephew when he was ill. She was the companion of his mother, Mrs. Laura Blossom, widow of my brother, Dwight Blossom, who died in 1903.

Strike Delayed Message.

"So firmly convinced was I that the trip to St. Louis to attend the funeral would have a bad effect upon Mrs. Blossom and Miss Taylor that I telegraphed to New York, advising that they should not come."

Conditions caused by the telegraphers' strike delayed Mr. Blossom's message. So anxious was the family to break the news gently to Howard Blossom's mother that, though the death occurred Saturday morning, it was not announced until Monday. Members of the family said this was because they wanted to communicate the news to Mrs. Blossom themselves, and did not want the news to reach her through indirect channels. They feared the effect of a sudden shock on her nerves.

That Miss Taylor showed signs of mental derangement immediately after she heard of Howard Blossom's death is not denied by members of the family. A statement to that effect has been given out by Olin D. Gray of New York. His wife is a niece of Mrs. Dwight Blossom, and at her country home Mrs. Blossom and Miss Taylor have been staying.

It was Mr. Gray who had Miss Taylor removed to Bellevue after she had shown signs of eccentricity at the funeral and in a Pullman car on her way back to the East.

Was Wife's Friend.

Members of the family here say they believe Mr. Gray's statement has been distorted and that he did not mean to convey the idea that Miss Taylor's "love" for Howard Blossom caused the dethronement of her reason. They think that what he meant was that, through her association with Mr. Blossom at his own home and in the presence of his immediate family, she learned to admire him for his lovable traits of character, his generosity and friendliness to all with whom he came in contact. Miss Taylor and Mrs. Howard Blossom, they say, were on the most friendly terms.

Mrs. Howard Blossom, at her home, sent down this message Friday:

"I am denying myself to all callers. This notoriety has no basis in fact. It has made me ill, and I can see no one."

The statement of Ben Von Phul of St. Louis, Miss Taylor's brother-in-law, who has gone East to get her out of the hospital, that an effort is being made to put Miss Taylor away so that she shall not receive a share of the Blossom estate, is not understood by members of the Blossom family in St. Louis.

Howard Blossom's father, who died four years ago, left an estate valued at $500,000 in trust for his heirs. He made no will, but under the terms of the trust the estate was to be managed by Howard Blossom. His relatives say that he managed the estate well and that under his direction it has greatly increased in value.

Will Not Probated.

They are at a loss to see how Miss Taylor could have figured as an heir or a beneficiary of the estate. The will of Howard Blossom, if he made one, has not yet been probated.

Miss Taylor, with Mrs. Dwight Blossom, arrived in St. Louis last Thursday to attend the funeral. They were accompanied by Mr. Gray.

The same evening they started back to New York. On the train Miss Taylor became violent and it was necessary to keep her locked in a stateroom. While there she wrote a note, directed it to Mrs. Ben Von Phul, her sister, and dropped it from the car window. In it she said she was being held a prisoner.

The note was mailed to Mrs. Von Phul, who with her husband left St. Louis last Wednesday night for New York.

In a statement given out at New York Olin D. Gray says Miss Taylor screamed when he telephoned to her, telling her Blossom had died. Afterward, he says, she explained her agitation by saying that Mr. Blossom had been very kind to her.

For a day she seemed very ill, but she insisted on accompanying Mrs. Blossom and Mr. Gray to the funeral.

NEGROES START RACE WAR BY ATTACKING POLICEMAN

Posse of White Men Rounds Up Whole Colored Population at Shelbyville, Ind.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

SHELBYVILLE, Ind., Sept. 6.—Shelbyville has another race war. The trouble started Wednesday when five negroes attacked Policeman Daniel Starkey, beat him into insensibility and fled when a crowd of white men arrived. Five shots were fired at the negroes, but none so far as known took effect.

A posse of 100 was formed and scoured the city. Mayor Swain and a squad of policemen captured two of the negroes, Steve and Robert Marshall. They were spirited to jail, where they are closely guarded. The other men escaped.

The police kept local negroes on the move all Wednesday night. They were not permitted to congregate on street corners or in the portion of town where they reside.

RIVAL SITES FOR THE FREE BRIDGE.

Delay such as is now attending the location of the free bridge is more likely to lead to an unwise selection than it is to promote a judicious one.

Ostensibly in the interest of circumspection, the pretended investigation by the House of Delegates actually opens the gates wide to self-seekers and jobbers of every description. If a decision can be deferred long enough there will be so many rival sites and their claims will be so vociferously supported by interested parties that a settlement will be almost an impossibility.

Proof of this is found in the fact that ambitious coteries are now in the field clamoring for particular locations which were not thought of a year ago. There is reason to believe that procrastination for another 12 months will develop additional claimants.

If the free bridge question is to resolve itself into a contest between the shouters and the barkers for various great real estate speculations the main idea will soon be lost sight of.

In the meantime the interests of the Terminal will not suffer. It is a condition and not a theory which confronts the monopoly. The theory was a distinct menace. The condition, which is one of inexorable wrangling, divided counsels, small jealousies and contemptible self-seeking is no menace at all. There will be no free bridge in fact until there is unity of purpose and determination in action.

Members of the House of Delegates are to blame for this situation. They have encouraged and they are now encouraging delay, and, as delay lengthens, excuses for its indefinite continuance will be found in the new propositions which it will stimulate.

Only one thing is to be taken into account in this connection and that is the interest of St. Louis and its commerce. All other considerations are trifling. The bridge is to be paid for by the people. It should be had at the earliest possible day.

Selfishness which unreasonably thwarts this object may ultimately defeat its own ends as well.

Messrs. Fish and Harahan do not live up to their reputations, and as a consequence there was much disappointment in New York the other day when they met and failed to punch each other in the nose.

SENATOR STONE'S "GREATEST NUMBER."

The other day the Post-Dispatch put this query: "Is there a Missourian with any pride in his State who would not rather see it represented by Senator Folk than Senator Stone?"

"Yes, I am one," writes Mr. Charles C. Scott. And among his reasons for not preferring Mr. Folk, he says: "Senator Stone is a Democrat, and believes, with Thomas Jefferson, in the greatest good to the greatest number."

The greatest number for whom Senator Stone desires the good was amply demonstrated to the public in his never-to-be-forgotten advocacy of certain alum reforms before the Legislature. "The greatest number" is coextensive with the actual membership of the notorious "Missouri Health Society."

Eight dollars per hundred for cigars at public expense shows that the tastes of the House of Delegates, though objectionable, are not extravagant.

ARSENE LUPIN AND OTHER THINGS.

A St. Louis minister is anxious to be committed to the Insane Asylum. It is a strange, true story, well told, in the coming Sunday Post-Dispatch.

What is public opinion as to the Lid—that change in morals and methods which has now been active in St. Louis for about two years? Has it been a blight or a benefit to the city? A number of prominent citizens give their views on this question in the coming Sunday Post-Dispatch.

A husband without a house; or a house without a husband—what an odd choice for a young woman to have set before her. And yet a young woman has this alternative. She may "have and hold" a handsome house and fine lot on the condition of remaining single. Her picture and the story of her dilemma is one of the Sunday Post-Dispatch features.

If you were a prisoner, jealously guarded as an unusually clever and dangerous criminal, and had actually entered the Courthouse under the watchful eye of the officers, could you suddenly get out of that fix? And how would you do it? Maurice Leblanc shows how Arsene Lupin, the cleverest "crook" created in literature, managed the thing.

Feeling blue? Too fat? Too thin? Poor digestion? "All in?" Then the story of how a number of St. Louisans are getting health without medicine—not a mind cure either—will interest you. A number of them spent the summer away off in the wild West; but that is a separate story.

It is really surprising what queer things St. Louis girls will do. Not singly and alone, of course, but in what the boys call gangs. And there's something in the Greek letters, when used as class signs, that seems to mean mischief. But it's all fun. The school-girl societies are really harmless. You ought to read about them.

These and many other curious, instructive and picturesque things make the coming Sunday Post-Dispatch Magazine one of the best ever printed. With the news of the whole world and the most advertising of any St. Louis Sunday paper it will be a treat for every home into which it comes.

The "great commoner" nicknames his rival the "great postponer." If Mr. Taft should happen to postpone Mr. Bryan's enjoyment of the White House for about four more years, the title would not be wanting in aptness.

IS "BOSS" ESSEN STILL PROUD OF IT?

It was only a few years ago that Col. Ed Butler proudly admitted that he was boss of St. Louis, and he even went to the length of asserting boastfully that a boss was entitled to "fees." His famous "fee" interview was one of the most notable and interesting contributions to conventional ethics since Machiavelli wrote "The Prince."

Yet he changed his tune when the situation in which he stood prominent was explored by Mr. Folk, and today, looking back upon it in the light of his experience, the Colonel doubtless regards his boast of bossship ill-advised. He is wiser now.

Mr. Fred Essen of St. Louis County, however, does not appear to be any wiser than Col. Butler was then. Mr. Essen has lately vaunted his bossship defiantly through the press, and declared that he would live up to the position. Perhaps history has repeated itself in the visit of Gov. Folk to the grand jury chamber at Clayton. It seems probable that Mr. Essen will be more conservative and less hasty in the future.

As to some things, Gov. Folk is a liberal educator, leaving many men wiser and a few sadder for his visitations.

Attorney-General Bonaparte wants men and money for the Department of Justice and Congress will have to provide them. There is no hope of putting even one malefactor of wealth in prison with the payroll as it now is.

DISAPPOINTMENT AT THE WEST END.

The statesmen of the West End Business Men's Association are cast down by the refusal of the President to call a convention to determine the powers of State and Federal courts.

It happens that a convention consisting of nine members and charged with this very duty is in session most of the time in Washington, and the President does not find it expedient to lend his name and influence to the organization of a rival body. The Supreme Court of the United States has succeeded fairly well thus far in reconciling all disputes between the courts of the country, and Mr. Roosevelt cannot be censured for assuming that it is not in need of assistance.

If the West Enders insist upon dealing with such questions as this they should know that they must proceed through private and volunteer agencies.

The long winter evenings are coming. Why not establish a debating society and invite all the orators? A stenographic report of the discussion would be entertaining and instructive and there is no telling what influence it might exert in high judicial circles.

The American who has been ejected from France for gambling is now probably headed for St. Louis County.

VARDAMAN AND THE UNWRITTEN LAW.

In no spirit of unkindness and with a realization of the proprieties of the case, Gov. Vardaman of Mississippi may well be asked if, in view of recent events in that State, his opinion of the wisdom of an unwritten law has not undergone a change.

Most of the advocates of that method of settling controversies and avenging wrongs are not those who have stood in the presence of dead or dying kinsmen. They have not seen the heart-broken widows and weeping children. They have known nothing of the sorrow and the shame and the remorse of it.

Comparatively easy as it may be in thoughtless moments, when far removed from the possibility of such tragedies, to prescribe death for others, things have a different aspect when the beating of the death angel's wings are heard in one's own circle and when honored age and buoyant youth go down in blood together, both of them awful sacrifices to revenge and an exaggerated sense of honor.

It is a fearful thing to take human life for any cause, but it is never more terrible and deplorable than when it is done in private feud. Vendettas such as this can have no logical end, except the extermination of the families concerned in them. They leave no memories save those of hate, anguish and woe.

Gov. Vardaman's immediate relatives have suffered greatly from this false and murderous method of settling disputes. He has stood at the gory biers of more than one of them. He has felt the grief and the humiliation and the futility of it all. He and his kinsmen are entitled to the keenest sympathy.

But what weighty words in condemnation of this most barbarous code might fall from him now if he would speak!

There are certain indications that Judge Landis' court is in contempt of the Attorney-General of the United States.

LEARNING DOG LAW FROM ARIZONA.

New Yorkers have recently questioned the right of anyone in the city to keep a dog. The same query has been raised in St. Louis. It is an important issue in all populous communities. Considerable progress has been made toward the refinement of dogs, but it seems impossible to breed out of them the old habits of barking at night and going mad along about the ides of August.

As usual, while the East and the Middle West are talking of doing something about it, the far West is acting in that quiet and effective manner characteristic of the country anywhere beyond Topeka.

Jose Matos of Phenix, Ariz., had four dogs a week ago. They ran out at some of the neighbors' children and sat in Jose's yard at night and bayed the auxiliary light of the world. An officer called and took Jose away to the Jail. Every day the Sheriff came and asked him if he would consent to have his dogs abated. On the fourth day Jose relented.

How Phenix must laugh to see New York and St. Louis carefully feeling their way where Arizona passed triumphantly long ago.

For 10 years, since the death of Brahms, Edward Grieg, the Scandinavian, reigned indisputably first among living composers; and now dead with Brahms, with whom he has been frequently coupled in criticism, he leaves the modern music world without a distinctly great representative in the field he has vacated. His eminence lay along the path of inimitable originality and the infusion of a flawless technique with a tonal quality at once racy of his nativity and universal for its romance and rich poetic feeling.

Giving as the reason the high price of corn, Cincinnati whisky dealers have advanced the price from $1.31 per gallon to $1.32. But even $1.32 somehow does not seem enough to pay for real whisky with corn in it. The moral is that everybody should drink at least 1 cent's worth less of the Cincinnati kind this year.

The Kinloch Telephone Co. establishes the fact that it has made no increase in its night rates, and for that reason the criticism directed at that policy elsewhere cannot apply to that corporation.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE.

100,000 Democrats.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

I do not believe there are 100,000 Democrats behind Mr. Scott. If they are, they are very much behind the times also. Missouri—Democratic and Republican—is weary of gambling and crime and corrupt legislation.

OLD MAN.

The Bucket-Shop Evil.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

What has become of the crusade against the bucket-shops? I took up my pen to ask what has become of Circuit Attorney Arthur N. Sager, but with the point suspended over the paper decided it were folly to inquire. But surely the state is not helpless when one of its officials fails to enforce the law. There must be other instrumentalities through which the bucket-shops may be prosecuted. I am told that the old gambling gang which is now bucketing the confiding public claims that it has the governor "stoppered." Can this be true?

ALF. C. HENEBAUM.

The Champion Who Talked.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

Once upon a time there was a bold, bad dragon that sat down at the cave's entrance and would not let the folks enter its cool recesses. The heat outside the cave was torturing the folk and they longed to get into the cave where they knew there was ice. They offered to feed the dragon on calves if it would come outside and stop blocking the entrance, but it demanded full grown beeves. The folk met and appointed a champion to go up to the cave and slay the dragon, for the supply of beeves was so small they could not afford to pay the dragon's price. The champion said, "Watch me!" He went up toward the cave mouth and talked to the dragon. He talked and he talked and he talked and he talked and he talked. That was years and years and years ago and he is talking and talking and talking yet.

Mexico's Attitude Toward Women.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

With no intent to anger our Mexican friends I must heartily disagree with Mr. Oldfield concerning the attitude of Mexican men toward women. Experience among them teaches me that the Mexican gentleman, like his brother of Paris, believes that he is perfectly justified in addressing any woman whom he sees alone upon the street. He will not permit his own women—wife, mother or sisters—to go out unattended because he knows the attitude of other men. And a foreigner will live half a life time in Mexico without receiving an invitation to meet the female members of his best Mexican friend's family, because his friend attributes his own attitude toward women to all men. Even young Mexican men are not permitted to call on Mexican girls and can only make their acquaintance "under the rose" or through the parents of both after a marriage has been arranged.

L. C. GIBSON.

Mexican Courtesy to Women.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

With a residence in Old Mexico of many years, as a foundation for the following, will say, regarding how a woman is considered in Mexico and elsewhere in Southern republics: She is always treated with much more respect and courtesy at home, upon the streets, in street cars and all public places than is accorded to them in the United States. As a matter of fact, politeness is an inborn quality of the Spanish and Mexican gentleman. This politeness extends to what is generally termed the peon element as well, and I am very sorry to say, being myself an American, I have seen several so-styled American gentlemen soundly thrashed on the streets in Mexico for an insult offered to Mexican women. The Mexican customs are somewhat different to those of the United States and being personally acquainted with many Mexican families that have daughters (young ladies grown), I have yet to hear a complaint made by them of being insulted in public or elsewhere by a native of her own country.

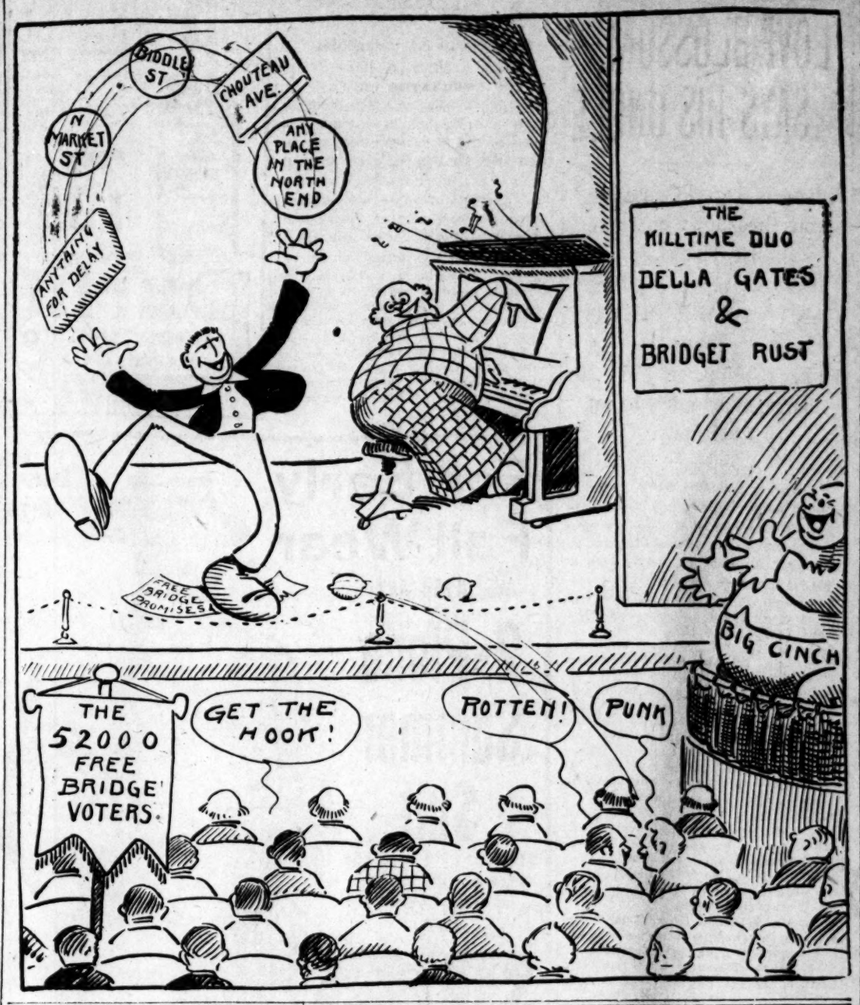
GEORGE W. HENRY.

The Brewery Harvest.

From the Indianapolis News.

No wonder the demand for high license and local option and prohibition has grown and become increasingly effective. The brewers have sown the wind. They are reaping the usual crop. And no people ever deserved such harvest more. Naturally they are alarmed, and are promising to be good. But no one will believe they are in earnest except as they are forced to be. They have stored up wrath against the day of wrath. They are getting only "what is coming to them." And that they are surely going to get—full measure, pressed down and running over.

ADVANCED VAUDEVILLE.



JUST A MINUTE

HER ONE LOVE.

When William Shakspeare sued the Muse,
I wonder if he ever guessed
That nothing him did she refuse,
But suffered him alone to wrest
Such inspiration as he prized,
To make what ringing phrase he would—
I wonder if he realized
Just how he stood?

I wonder if his spirit knows
How many men have sued her since
His own immortal music rose
In its unmatched magnificence?
And if he knows his constant Muse
Holds steadfast through all time and dim,
And all men else doth she refuse—
Still true to him?

ZOLNAY AND HIS BURGLAR.

Sculptor Zolnay wants to arrest the man who steals the bottle of milk off the Zolnay back porch.

That is what most of us would want to do, but we are surprised that Mr. Zolnay, also, should take that view of it. We are informed that the burglar has been seen, and the back door opened in his face. If this is true, Mr. Zolnay could see him almost any morning through the back shutter.

Is there no inspiration for Mr. Zolnay in something of this sort? Is it not life exceptionally revealed? Is it possible a painter, sculptor, or writer, would not care to study a burglar's face in the very act of burgling?

Perhaps Mr. Zolnay, if left to his artistic impulse, without being stampeded by the ladies of his household, would not put the police on the burglar, but would study him in the act of coming up the back steps after the milk, with his face white and drawn in the excitement of crime, and his eyes giving forth that singular light which criminologists regard as the outward manifestation of crime relish in a born rogue.

Someone has said that "art adapts all things to its ends." Why not Mr. Zolnay's burglar?

FIRST IMPRESSION.

What will they say
In Mandalay
When Big Bill Taft
Comes up the bay?

Why, making of it
What they can,
Their cry shall be
No other than,
"Here comes the

Does the Republican party also want to be held responsible for the fruit crop?

A Washington correspondent speaks of the Mississippi River as "the Big Muddy." That's what the Father of Waters gets for associating with the Missouri.

MISSOURI.

Some day, when the world has had its fill
Of motors that break down,
And horses prone to run away
When driven into town,
And it shall turn to some power which
Of sweet contents the sum,
The world will bless Missouri,
Where the mules come from.

Some day, when the world becomes aware
Of what a mule can do,
And what an even tenor he
Is wonted to pursue,
And it shall stand before his kind
With admiration dumb,
The world will bless Missouri,
Where the mules come from.

BASEBALL AND DIVORCE.

A St. Louis woman has sued her husband for divorce, alleging that he is a baseball fan.

This will probably be found to constitute sufficient grounds. A baseball fan is not a desirable husband. When the team is in town he goes out to the park and stays there until almost 6 o'clock. By the time he gets home the dinner is cold and the girl has quit because she wanted to go out in the evening. When the team is not at home he stays downtown to look at the scoreboard. If the game ran 20 innings, he would stay with it. He perhaps loves his wife, but he loves baseball better, and he has no thought for the mental anguish he is causing her, or the manner in which he is throwing his happy home out of its stride.

In the morning he reads his paper when he should be eating his breakfast. His wife cautions him that he will be late, but he must dig around in the sporting page until he finds out if Stone made any hits, or something equally unimportant. In the evening he scolds his wife because he did not get to his office until 10 minutes after 8.

But, with all that, a woman could live with a baseball fan, bearing with him as woman must with man, if it were not for Sunday. On Sunday there are four pages of sport. He must read them all. He must absorb all the averages. He won't go to church. He won't even shave.

The fact is, that for the ordinary feminine temperament, the baseball fan is impossible.

CLARK McADAMS.

Politicians and Brains.

From the Los Angeles (Cal.) Herald.

The friends of that St. Louis boy whom the physicians declare has only a spoonful of brains in his head need not worry. He seems eminently qualified to become a politician in his home city.

Burglar Proof.

Knicker: Is this safe burglar proof?
Bocker: Yes; it is equipped with a patent car-window device.—New York Sun.

BEANS.

From the Detroit Free Press.

Woods Hutchinson, M. D., writing in McClure's, actually has the temerity to hurl technically worded assaults at Michigan's noted product, beans, telling us in the language which science sometimes employs when it wishes to carry a terrible front, that in the bean "coiled amid its rich store of proteid and fat, like guardian dragons, lie an aromatic oil and a bitter alkaloid, both poisonous to the susceptible stomach in small amounts, and to the average one in larger." Quit your foolishness, doctor. New England took beans as infant food, clung to it through all the years, and is committed to it to the end of time. In the granite mountain sides of New Hampshire they planted the seed with a shotgun, and remembered it at Thanksgiving if there was an average yield of a bean to every two hills.

Murder and Politics.

From the New York World.

Goebel was shot Feb. 8, 1900, from a window of the Statehouse in Lexington during the bitterest election contest even Kentucky has ever known. Taylor had received an undoubted majority of the votes. Goebel, himself a brawling fighter with a notch on his revolver stock, was trying to have himself counted in by a partisan returning board constituted by a law whose passage he had secured while Senator.

Taylor committed a dangerous error of judgment when he brought down thousands of armed mountain men to Lexington to show the Legislature their deep interest in the conflict, as he put it; to overawe them, as his opponents said. But to plot murder would have been for him as great a blunder as crime.

The result of that one rifle shot was to elect Beckham Governor, to put Joe Blackburn in the Senate, to defeat a promising movement for the reform of the Democratic party from within and to prostitute the lower courts to an unworthy thirst for feud vengeance. So much for the baneful results of murder in politics.

Bamboula.

From the New Orleans Item.

From the thirteenth to the sixteenth of this month the Elks give a "Bamboula" at White City—for the benefit of the public baths fund.

What is a "Bamboula?"

"Bamboula" is an African word, or at least a word which the African slaves in the French colonies of North and Central America—such as Louisiana, Martinique, Guadaloupe and St. Domingue—used to designate a high old time, by way of feasting, drinking, singing, dancing and all that sore of thing.

Defies Public Printer Stillings.

From the Washington Times.

The men who have upset our heads and pied our copy and misread our proofs these 20 years—the men who have queried at midnight on historical details, who have corrected our dates and reformed our knock-kneed spelling, shall not be Mr. Johnson and Mr. Smith to us. We shall continue to call them as we have always done—and most respectfully—John and Bill.

Alton B. Parker.

From the Washington Post.

As was to have been expected, the news former Gov. James E. Campbell carried from New York to the effect that Alton B. Parker has the bee in his bonnet, was greeted with considerable derision, but the fact remains that that same Alton B. Parker would pretty nearly be President of the United States this blessed moment if the country had known in October, 1904, all it knows in September, 1907, about campaign funds.

B. F.—If your husband doesn't speak to you, forget it and be thankful, for where there is no talking there can be no quarreling. Many couples who speak have frequent quarrels.

W. A.—The profits of the business of a man dying without a will would be assets in the hands of the administrator for the benefit of all heirs concerned, until such time as distribution among them is in order.

S.—To remove ink stains from white silk: Wet with javelle water and lay in sun for two hours; sponge with pure water; dry in sun and repeat process, rinsing every few hours and sunning all the while.

C. D.—Husband would have no interest by way of curtesy or otherwise in the real estate in which wife has only a life interest. Life tenant and those holding the remainder can convey; signature of life tenant's husband not necessary.

G. A.—At the Public Library, 911 Locust, you can get advice as to the best reading to acquire a knowledge of English history and literature. Read Fiske's histories and Walker's American Law. These books will easily enrich your leisure for a year.

SUB.—We have not heard that the bartenders in Chicago saloons are being organized into total abstinence clubs or unions. It is well known that many bartenders are teetotalers. The bartender who is sober and reliable is always preferred to one who might drink too much.

F. J. M.—If blackheads are prominent on the face, you can force them to the surface with a watch key and apply hydrozone, which will sizzle them away in a very few hours. Wiping the face with diluted alcohol will often remove tiny blackheads. For pimples, careful diet, pure air, deep breathing, exercise.

M. F.—Cucumber pickles, sweet: Pare and seed ripe cucumber. Slice each lengthwise into four pieces, or fancy shapes; let stand 24 hours covered with cold vinegar. Drain; then put into fresh vinegar with two pounds sugar and one ounce cassia buds to one quart vinegar and tablespoon salt. Boil all together 20 minutes. Cover closely in jar.

W.—Missouri law forbids incorporation under the name of a person or firm, unless there be joined thereto some word designating the business to be carried on, followed by the word company or corporation. We cannot see how it is possible to incorporate under a certain name and legally carry on the company's business under another; under such circumstances the officers would incur personal responsibilities.

M.—Canary lice: Hold the bird and sprinkle some sulphur on it and make a small bag out of red flannel and fill it with sulphur and hang it in the cage so the bird will pick at it. Hang on top of cage. Take off top of cage and look for lice. Feed your bird German birdseed. It should have a bath every morning. Feed it lettuce or cabbage, and a pod of red pepper is good.

A. F. R.—Letter carrier age, 18 to 45. Civil service examination (last at Old Postoffice). It would be about three years before a substitute now going on would be made a regular; pay, $1 a year and pro rata salary of regular carrier when serving on route.

MAMIE.—Nut icing: In a clean frying pan put one cupful of sugar and stir dry over a moderate fire. It will first lump like tapioca, then begin to melt. When changed to a clear syrup let cook slowly until the caramel is almost as dark colored as coffee. Throw in quickly one-half of a cupful of boiling water. When it stops spattering stir until evenly melted, then slowly boil to a thick syrup. Take from the fire and stir in one-third of a cupful of pecans or almonds chopped fine and pounded, one scant teaspoonful of vanilla, and sufficient confectioners' sugar to make a soft paste just thick enough to spread without running off the cake.

J.—How many acres are there in a square tract of land containing as many acres as there are boards in the fence inclosing it, if the boards are 11 feet long and the fence four boards high? X equals number of acres and number of planks; 11X-4 equals number of feet in perimeter; 11X-16 equals number of feet in one side; 121X2-256 equals number of square feet in field; 121X2-256 divided by 43,560 equals X, or number of acres in field; 121X2-256 equals 43,560X; 121X-256 equals 43,560; X-256 equals 360; X equals 92,160 acres or planks. Proof: Planks 11 feet long each and four high, therefore perimeter 2¾ times 92,160 feet long, or 253,440 feet one side equals one-quarter of 253,440, or 63,360 feet long; square of one side would be 4,014,489,600 feet; reduced to acres (divide by 43,560) equals 92,160 acres.

WHEN HE DOESN'T PROPOSE.

Post-Dispatch Readers Offer Advice to an Anxious Maiden.

A CORRESPONDENT of the Sunday Post-Dispatch submits a difficult problem. She asks: "How can I induce a young man to propose to me?" Readers have answered the question in competition for prizes, and the winners will be announced in the next Sunday Post-Dispatch.

Create a Demand.

There is, I suppose, no never-failing rule, but let the young woman show an interest in some other young man, real or imaginary. The principle underlying the rule being the greater the demand the more desirable the article.

FANNIE C. COBB.

Ask His Intentions.

If the young man has been attentive for several years and they respect one another, I do not think he would esteem her less if she asked him plainly if he ever intended to propose.

ADELAIDE WEHMEIER,
4321 North Eleventh St.

Be Heartily Hospitable.

I believe that no manly, sensible young fellow expects a young lady to sacrifice her dignity in so far as to hint slightly for a proposal, and that a young lady of the proper caliber will intuitively know the intentions of a young gentleman after a reasonable length of courtship. Therefore, I believe only a manifested disposition of mutual opinions in a gentle, lady-like manner, and hearty hospitality at all times are necessary.

MISS FLOSSIE KIRALFY,
5300 Arsenal street.

Cultivate the Virtues.

I am married and have had many admirers and proposals, and the best inducement, I think, to win the latter is to lead a life such as will prove to him that you are purity itself. Avoid the use of slang, cultivate refinement and do not let your anxiety pertaining to matrimony be shown. Be independent and not a weakling. And nothing more is necessary. At least that is my experience, for I was neither rich nor beautiful, which most girls think it takes to get married. A true man is looking for virtue in his life's companion.

MARTHA ELLISON.

Hand Him a Lemon.

My plan is a very simple one. Just watch your chance until you are alone with your friend. Then say, by the way, dear, I want to tell you about a friend of mine. She is keeping steady company with a young man of some time and he hasn't spoken a word of marriage to her. So she asked me, "What can I do to induce him to propose to me?" So I told her I would hand him a lemon. If your young man loves you truly and wants you for his wife he will surely propose then and there for fear you might hand him a lemon.

CATHERINE OPPERMAN,
1904 South Second St.

Life Is So Short.

A young lady drawing her sweetheart on to a proposal should relate to him an incident where a couple got married after several years of courtship, and say that it was about time, for life is too short to spend a number of years as sweethearts, when one or two years ought to be enough to weigh one's love and to consider if they would be happy in one another's company for life. By this time, if he does not propose, tell him you are actually tired of being single, and how nice it would be to be married and have a home of your own. By this time, if there is nothing stirring, ask him if he thinks he will ever marry? If he does not propose by this time, he certainly is not one of the marrying kind.

MRS. MARGARET DUKER,
1607 Frederick St., East St. Louis.

Stir Him Up.

If you have been going with one young gentleman exclusively for a year or more, and have every reason to believe he cares for you, although he has not made you an offer of marriage, he is either too bashful or perhaps indifferent and needs a little stirring up. Don't be too ready, however, to throw yourself at his feet. Continue to be your own sweet self, modest, refined and at the same time a little independent, making him feel that you are the prize to be won and that there are others ready and willing to enter the contest. Next time he wishes to call inform him, sweetly and graciously, that you are going to the concert with Bobby tonight. He will begin to realize the sweet-voiced bird has flown, perhaps for ever. Then if he doesn't propose—but he will!

TEAR-DROPS AND BEAUTY

Becoming Weeping Described by a Post-Dispatch Expert on Feminine Loveliness.

BY MARGARET HUBBARD AYER.

I NOTICE the assertion of a well-known beauty specialist that it is beautifying to weep in moderation; the kind of tear I presume she refers to that rises a little above the heart, gathers in the eye and becomingly trickles down the cheek in a limpid stream. These idle tears, a kind of surface fluidity, are not ugly on a pretty face. They impart to the eyes a melting look that is irresistible to the soft-hearted. There is no unnatural pumping to the tear ducts and therefore no red lids. They might be termed "tear exercise" and they have no more to do with real feeling than any exercise of a physical nature.

But beware of secret weeping, that weeping which arises from unlocked flood gates, where rivers of tears wash away the brightness of the eyes and plow furrows in the countenance. This kind of weeping, too, does not arise from the seat of real emotion; it is purely physical, the melancholy of a torpid liver, the sadness of malnutrition. Do not allow yourself to be overcome with pity when your friend inundates you with streams of tears, but sensibly and practically take the matter up from the standpoint of health. The troubles which are really troubles settle themselves on a plane far deeper than the plane of light emotions and have little to do with either secret or public weeping.

I know numbers of women too well bred to allow their emotions to overpower them, who yet weep copiously from physical exhaustion. I have a friend who is attacked by such deep-seated melancholy and such pitiful tremulousness when she is very hungry that one would imagine she had been visited with a real personal sorrow when dinner is a trifle late. A strong, healthy young woman, who faithfully obeys the simple rules of hygiene, is never an habitual weeper, and if the inexorable laws of heaven decree that she must suffer a great misfortune, the cheerfulnss of good health will persist in asserting itself and prevent the lachrymal glands from overworking themselves.

GOOD MANNERS WIN WOMEN

Sir Walter Raleigh's Example Commended to Men by This Post-Dispatch Writer.

BY NIXOLA GREELEY-SMITH.

NIXOLA GREELY-SMITH

"NO," said an eloping wife, whose husband after having her and her companion arrested, seemed inclined to forgive her, "I don't want to go back to you. I'm going to get a divorce and marry Gene. He's a gentleman and you are not!"

Never has woman's admiration for the man with good manners at the expense of the man with good intentions been better exemplified than in this police court incident.

The husband exercising a noble forgiveness seldom practiced was not a "gentleman" in her eyes when compared with the man who had taken her away from home and by so doing subjected her to humiliating arrest.

Her conclusion was probably based, as nearly all feminine conclusions are, on some single detail, some detached incident. Perhaps the preferred "Gene" always remembered to stand aside and open the door for her, held her coat, brought her candy occasionally, never forgot any of the small services that make some women forget the fine deeds of other men.

Sir Walter Raleigh, when he threw his costly cloak down before Queen Elizabeth that she might not walk in the mire, made a greater hit with the capricious Queen by that single act than years of gallant service would have won for him. And many women of our own day betray this same Elizabethian fondness for the grandstand play.

I confess that I sympathize with their general admiration for the well-mannered man. A great deal is said about diamonds in the rough, but what good is a diamond until it is polished except to sell?

BRIEFS FOR GOOD WIVES.

How to Make the Home Happy, According to One Post-Dispatch Writer.

BY HELEN VAIL WALLACE.

AVOID weariness by planning intervals of rest. To be tired out when your husband comes home is not fair, either to yourself or to him.

Study your husband's temperament. If he is artistic remember your dress. The rose in your hair is ofttimes important. Be always neat, in any case.

Have all the disagreeable work out of sight before he arrives. This is your business. It is as unfair to burden him with it as for him to drag his business cares home with him. Of course, mutual business interests have a place and must be discussed. At such times give your undivided intelligent sympathy and attention.

Plan home recreations in harmony with his needs and tastes. Encourage your husband in every way to forget "shop" while at home. Change, not idleness, is true rest. Monotony is responsible for many deaths.

Don't have any woes. If you do don't tell him (or anybody).

Attention to worries is food for boogies. Ignore them, and they die of starvation.

If the children chance to be a feature with him see that they brighten his homecoming by neat appearance and little personal attentions. If not, train them to let him rest in peace, and do not persecute him yourself by telling him all that they have said and done during the day. In seven cases out of ten this latter kind of husband wants your undivided personal attention turned toward his blessed self. Don't disappoint him.

Make your home a peaceful, happy haven from all business cares. Each home may be the center of a little heaven on earth; a heaven on the installment plan. You are the one to keen the installments paid up.

HOW COMMON WORDS ORIGINATED.

POULTRY, according to the definition given in one standard encyclopedia, includes "the whole of the domesticated birds reclaimed by man for the sake of their flesh and their eggs." The word comes from the Latin "pulsus," which could mean a young horse or donkey as well as a chick (the English "foal" in akin to this), through the French "poule," a fowl. But it is curious that "poultry" has no French version, the nearest equivalent being "volaille" or "taseaule basse cour," birds of the low yard. German, in its descriptive way, knows poultry as "federvich," feather cattle. Lucullus, the Roman General, brought the cherry tree into Europe after his campaigns in Asia in the century before Christ. The name of this favorite fruit comes from Cerasus, in Pontus, the old Asiatic kingdom south of the Black Sea. The peach, which is "Persicum malum" (the Persian apple), the pheasant (from the River Phasis), and jet (from Gazaz in Asia Minor) are similar instances of things named by the Romans from their Oriental origin and entirely unrecognized as Oriental today. Potatoes came to this country from Europe, which got them from Peru, whence the Spaniards carried them across the Atlantic. The name, in its original form, batata, was applied first to the sweet potato, which had a tropical origin, but accounts differ as to whether it came from the East or the West Indies. Its cousin, the yam, is a favorite in nearly all tropical countries. It grows a huge tuber and has a high-climbing vine which requires a pole to perform its acrobatic feats upon.

IF YOU WANT FIVE DOLLARS

Write the Best Limerick on the Newlyweds and Their Baby for the Post-Dispatch.

HAVE you tried your hand at the limerick? It's very easy to write. Take for a subject the Newlyweds and their son, Napoleon. Think out your last line first and make the other lines fit it, conforming exactly to the meter and rhmyes shown in the best of the following examples. Sign your name and address and send the example of your skill to Limerick, Post-Dispatch, St. Louis, Mo. If it is the best limerick in this competition you will receive $5 from the Post-Dispatch. Be funny, but don't be rude.

We all of us take off our caps
To the Newlywed baby's mishaps,
And some of us—ah!
Would inquire if his Ma
Has an unmarried sister, perhaps?

There was a young fellow named Nap—
You know him, the Newlywed chap—
His mama's a dear,
But lud, what a queer
Chimpanzee he has for a pap!

Oh, my, but the fun we have had
With seeing the Newlywed lad,
But we have to confess
We can none of us guess
How his ma could have married his dad.

The Newlywed baby's a bother,
And causes a whole lot of pother,
But who wouldn't yell
And raise four kinds of hob,
Discovering that was his father?

The Newlywed boy is a larder
Of life, and from gloom a sure warder,
But with all of our laughter,
We wish he'd ta'en after
His ma just a little bit harder.

The Newlywed babe is the sum
Of joy when a body is glum,
He laughs and he creeps,
And whenever he weeps,
You can see down into his tum.

Early Rising.

Dr. Woods Hutchinson, in the American Magazine.

A baby or young child should have absolutely every minute of sleep that it can be induced to take, and sleeplessness is even more emphatically a sign of disease in children than in adults. The necessity and capacity for large amounts of refreshing sleep persists up to adult life and the amount required seldom falls below ten hours before the eighteenth or twentieth year.

To make children or rapidly growing young adults get up before they have had their sleep out, and feel thoroughly rested, is not merely irrational but cruel, and when it is done as a routine practice at boarding schools, or other institutions, by those who pretend to be fitted to have the care of children it is little short of criminal.

The Hazed Under Dog.

From the Baltimore American.

The revival of hazing at the Naval Academy, even in a very mild form, as reported, only proves the ugly truth that the desire to kick the under dog springs eternal in the youthful human breast. And a man with a whole class and all the traditions of a school against him is certainly the most defenseless kind of an under dog.

Stuffed Live Crabs.

L. L. McLaren tells in High Living how soft-shell crabs are prepared in an Italian monastery. Six crabs are placed, while alive, in a bowl containing one pint of milk and three beaten eggs. A HACKLED HAT.

A Lilt of Today Written for the Post-Dispatch

BY IMOGENE ARNI.

She tripped a'down the street,
With dainty, dainty feet,
A smile so sweet and sunny, and all that;
She knew she looked her best,
As her bracelets she caressed,
For she had a bunch of hackle on her hat.

A window of plate glass
This maiden chanced to pass;
She stopped and gave her pompadour a pat,
The people thought she stayed
To admire the wares displayed—
She was looking at the hackle on her hat.

With joy that nought could mar,
As she stepped aboard a car,
She spied her chum and down beside her sat;
The first words that her chum
Said, when she shared her gum:
"What a darling bunch of hackle on your hat!"

The days are growing cool,
Changing styles are now the rule,
But bear in mind this rule—it's laid down flat:
Your number's twenty-three,
In the swim you cannot be,
Without a bunch of hackle on your hat.

Good Record.

HAS ONLY ONE ARM, BUT IS GOOD PITCHER

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

SPRINGFIELD, O., Sept. 6.—Mordecai Brown, the three-fingered twirler for the Chicago Cubs, has a rival.

Roy Holland, a 14-year-old boy of this city, who has only one arm, and that the left one, is the premier twirler of the Bushnell team in the Boys' Vacation League.

"Armie," as he is called, has everything a successful twirler should have in the way of curves, speed and control. In a recent game he shut out the opposing team with two hits, and failed to give a single base on balls.

Large crowds go out every time he pitches. He grips the ball against his leg, when preparing to throw. He has a peculiar wind-up, circling his arm over his head, then at his side, and releasing the ball in front of him.

FRED GLADE WILL QUIT BASEBALL

Browns' Pitcher Will Retire From the Game at the End of This Season.

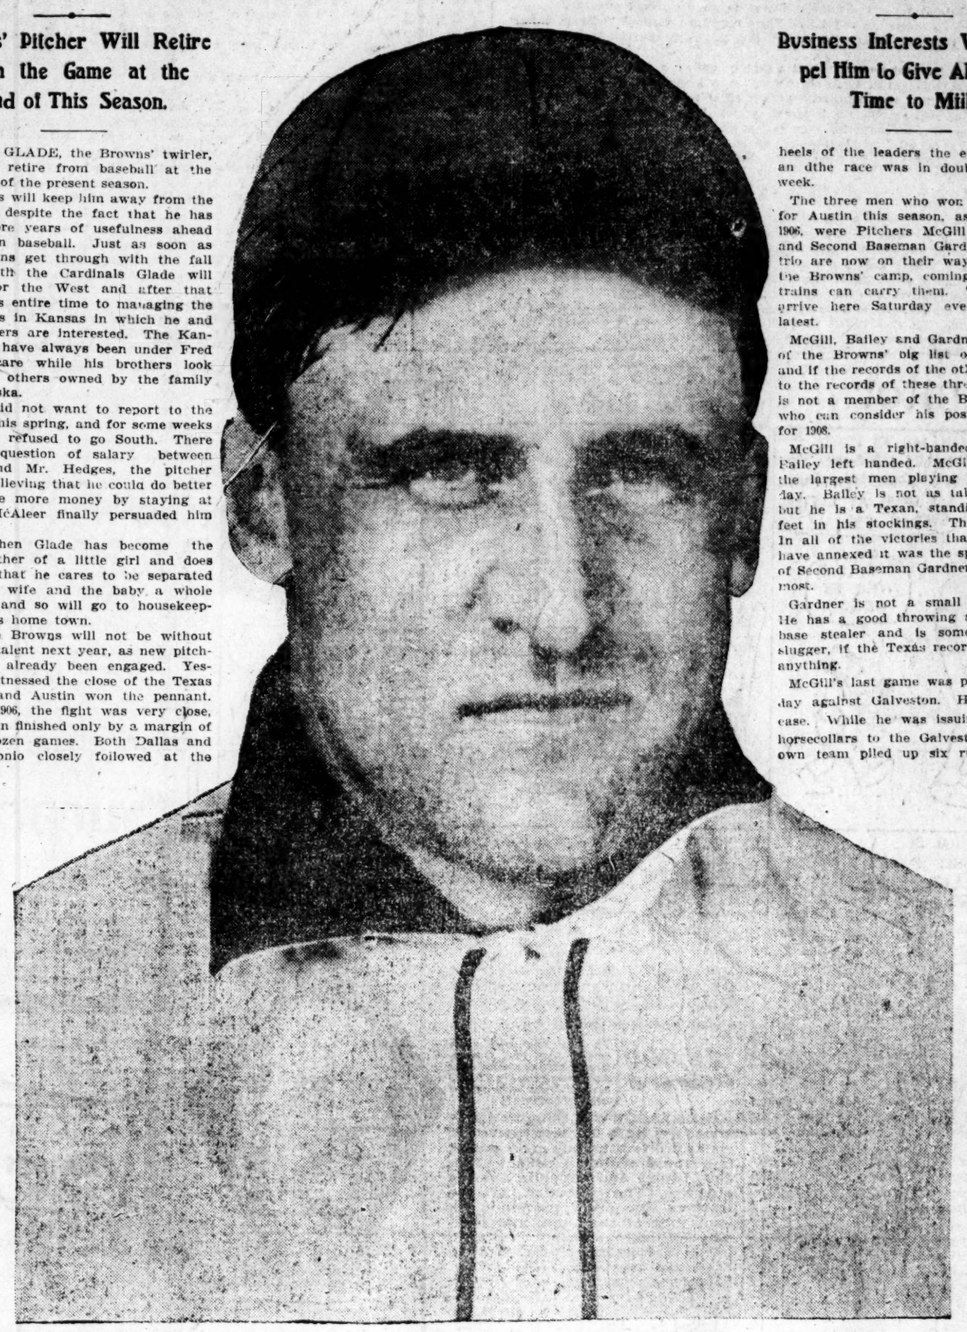
FRED GLADE, the Browns' twirler, will retire from baseball at the end of the present season.

Business will keep him away from the diamond, despite the fact that he has many more years of usefulness ahead of him in baseball. Just as soon as the Browns get through with the fall series with the Cardinals Glade will depart for the West and after that devote his entire time to managing the flour mills in Kansas in which he and his brothers are interested. The Kansas mills have always been under Fred Glade's care while his brothers look after the others owned by the family in Nebraska.

Glade did not want to report to the Browns this spring, and for some weeks positively refused to go South. There was no question of salary between Glade and Mr. Hedges, the pitcher simply believing that he could do better and make more money by staying at home. McAleer finally persuaded him to report.

Since then Glade has become the proud father of a little girl and does not feel that he cares to be separated from his wife and the baby a whole summer, and so will go to housekeeping in his home town.

But the Browns will not be without pitching talent next year, as new pitchers have already been engaged. Yesterday witnessed the close of the Texas League, and Austin won the pennant. Like in 1906, the fight was very close, and Austin finished only by a margin of half a dozen games. Both Dallas and San Antonio closely followed at the heels of the leaders the entire season, an dthe race was in doubt until this week.



Business Interests Will Compel Him to Give All of His Time to Mills.

The three men who won the pennant for Austin this season, as well as in 1906, were Pitchers McGill and Bailey and Second Baseman Gardner, and the trio are now on their way headed for the Browns' camp, coming as fast as trains can carry them. They should arrive here Saturday evening at the latest.

McGill, Bailey and Gardner are three of the Browns' big list of purchases, and if the records of the others conform to the records of these three men there is not a member of the Browns' team who can consider his position certain for 1908.

McGill is a right-handed man, and Bailey left handed. McGill is one of the largest men playing baseball today. Bailey is not as tall as McGill, but he is a Texan, standing over six feet in his stockings. That's enough. In all of the victories that these men have annexed it was the splendid work of Second Baseman Gardner that helped most.

Gardner is not a small man either. He has a good throwing arm, a good base stealer and is something of a slugger, if the Texas records count for anything.

McGill's last game was pitched Tuesday against Galveston. He won with ease. While he was issuing a set of horsecollars to the Galveston boys his own team piled up six runs.

EXPECTS STRONG FOOTBALL TEAM

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

URBANA, Ill., Sept. 6.—Spurred on by its success on track and diamond in 1907 and rendered hopeful by the tradition that Illinois has a good football team every third year—and this is the third—the Illini are preparing for the opening of the practice season Monday, Sept. 16.

Not since 1904 has a strong eleven represented the Orange and Blue. The overwhelming defeat at the hands of the Maroons last fall unsettled the graduate coaching system, and it is generally accepted that this fall will give the method its final trial. Should the football history of the last two seasons repeat itself, there is small doubt a radical change in coaching will be made.

HARRY HOWELL,
Beat the Chicago White Sox in Fast Game Thursday.

AMERICAN LEAGUE RACE WILL BE SETTLED HERE AT SPORTSMAN'S PARK

White Sox, Detroit and the Clevelands Will All Battle in St. Louis Right at the Wind-Up of the Season.

THE American League pennant race is going to be settled right here in St. Louis.

Sounds like a queer statement. But its true nevertheless.

While the Cardinals were taking a hard fall out of the Reds yesterday afternoon by a splendid batting rally, the Browns were going a long way towards keeping the Chicago White Sox out of the race up in the Windy City by taking them into camp to the tune of 4 to 3. With the exception of about half a dozen games the remainder of the Browns' schedule is with Cleveland, Detroit, Chicago and Philadelphia—the contenders in the American League race.

So the Browns will figure very prominently in the pennant business this year after all.

The Athletics will not be seen again on the St. Louis diamond, as the three games with the Browns will be played in Philadelphia, but the other three will appear here. The Detroit Tigers finish in St. Louis with two double-headers. This makes a total of six games between the Browns and the Tigers yet to be played, and all of them are on the local grounds. The winning of them all may win the pennant for the Tigers and the loss of only one may be the loss of the pennant for that team.

How really important this is for St. Louis can hardly be realized. St. Louis has four more scheduled games with the Cleveland Naps, two here and two in Cleveland. Chicago Sox have four games yet with the Browns, one on their ground and three at Sportsman's Park.

The redeeming feature of it all is that the Browns are fighting hard, as was illustrated yesterday, and it is as likely as not that they may annex a majority of the games to be played among the leading four clubs.

Cubs in Athletic Events.

According to the Cincinnati players now here, before the Cubs left St. Louis President Murphy forwarded the entries of Blaine Durbin, Orval Overall, Artie Hofman and Johnny Kling in the field day contests at the Cincinnati ball park next Tuesday. Garry Herrmann received the following letter with the entries:

"August Herrmann, Cincinnati, O.—Dear Sir: Inclosed you will find entry blanks duly filled out by four members of the Chicago League Ball Club, who are desirous of participating in the bowlers' field day at the Cincinnati Baseball Park on Tuesday, Sept. 10. John G. Kling, who is generally accredited the greatest of all catchers, is a contestant in Event No. 2. Arthur F. Hofman, who is regarded by most good judges as the best utility man in the baseball profession, will be an entry in Event No. 5—that of circling the bases. Blaine Durbin will contest in Event No. 3—that of running out a fair bunt to first base. Orval Overall will take part in Event No. 1—that of long-distance fungo hitting. All these men from our team will be there in their uniforms, and will do all in their power to make the events noteworthy.

"Manager Chance would have liked to take part in some of the contests, but his health is not of the best at present, and he is compelled to reluctantly remain away. I shall endeavor to be present personally upon the 10th of September, and hope that the event will be what it should be—one of the greatest in modern baseball, which will be calculated to settle many disputes as to the leaders in the various lines of endeavor on the ball field. Respectfully,

"CHARLES W. MURPHY,
"President."

SULLIVAN AND ATTELL TO FIGHT ON SEPTEMBER 21

Douglas Finally Succeeds in Matching the Men for a Six-Round Go to Be Held at His Physical Culture School.

Tommy Sullivan and Abe Attell have signed articles of agreement to meet at Bob Douglass' physical culture farm outside of Alton, Saturday, Sept. 21. Attell is featherweight champion of America and Sullivan is at present boxing instructor at the M. A. C. and one of the precious few who have received a decision over Abe in his long ring career.

The two men have been trying to get together for a couple of years now, and the report that Tommy was matched to meet the Ghetto champion has served as a "story" a multitude of times. Recently, though, the Post-Dispatch got the men into direct communication and the result is the present match.

The point in issue that has kept the men continually haggling and apart has been the question of weight. Attell usually fights at 122 pounds, but was willing to make the avoirdupois point 126. Sullivan, who is a heavier built man than the little champion, has been unwilling to agree to this, thinking it would weaken him too much if he made it. But at length he has consented and the articles call for 126 pounds at the ringside.

The one thing that will worry the backers of the local man is whether Tommy, after his long layoff from the ring and his addition of an amount of surplus weight, will be able to train down to 116 and yet retain his strength and agility.

Sullivan defeated Attell before the West End Club here in 1904 and it will be upon this ground that the local contingent will back him. Attell, though, since then, has fought the very best men of the country, and obtained the decision, while Tommy has lived easily and practically done no work, from which Attell backers draw the conclusion that Tommy has gone back, while Abe has improved.

Douglas guaranteed Attell $1000, and the purse will be split, 60 per cent to the winner and 40 per cent to the loser. Harry Sharpe will in all probability referee the fight, but this question of the third man in the ring has not as yet been definitely decided.

Sullivan has wired for Andy Walsh, the man who handled him the previous time he met Attell and defeated him, to come from New York to prep him for this go. Tommy will start training immediately at Roth's Grove, just west of Delmar Garden. Attell will do the greater part of his training before coming to St. Louis.

S.S.S. REMOVES BLOOD HUMORS

When the blood becomes infected with unhealthy humors the effect is shown on the skin in the form of pimples, rashes, eruptions, or some other type of skin disease. These humors circulating in the blood, come in contact with the delicate tissues and fibres of the skin and produce irritation and inflammation, and often excessive itching and burning. Trying to cure skin troubles with external applications is treating the effect instead of the cause. Such treatment perhaps allays some of the itching and discomfort, but does not reach the blood where the real source of troubles lies. A thorough cleansing of the blood is the only cure for humors in the blood. S. S. S., a gentle acting, safe blood purifier, is the proper treatment. It goes down into the circulation and neutralizes the humors and removes them from the blood. S. S. S. supplies the blood with the fresh, healthy properties necessary to sustain the skin and keep it free from disease. S. S. S. cures Eczema, Tetter, Acne, Salt Rheum, pimples, boils, rashes, and all other skin affections and diseases, because it purifies the blood and removes the humors which are responsible for the trouble. CENTRAL HIGH INITIATES FIRST GRIDIRON WORK

Red and Black Squad First Interscholastic School to Take Up Football Work.

Although school has been in session but three days, the Central High boys are already practicing for the fall football campaign. The prospects for a winning team at that school were never brighter. With eight veterans of last year's team in line, and with many new candidates showing themselves, the Grand avenue lads' prospects for turning out a winning team are roseate.

The squad is doing light practice on the Forest Park gridiron under the direction of Capt. Wagner. Coach Walker will take charge of the work Saturday, when the first call will be made, and the training will then be carried on systematically.

Regulars Have Returned.

The regulars who have returned are John Wagner, captain and right tackle; Earl Sherry, left tackle; Harry Hall, left end; George Haynes, right half; Eugene Bayley, left guard; Leonard Baker, right guard; McCarthy, center; Lincoln, fullback, and Sparks, quarter.

Several good new men will try for positions. Lesser, an Eastern player, has just entered school. He weighs 170 pounds and will try for end. If he makes the team he should prove the Shevlin of the Interscholastic League.

Some New Men.

Maestre of Maplewood Institute in Pennsylvania, Gladding of St. Charles Military Academy, Taylor Castlen of last year's Yeatman High team and Earl Mitchell of the second team are the most promising of the newcomers. Graves, McKinley High School's star center, tried to enter Central, but could not affect a transfer. He will probably be with McKinley this year.

A meeting of the Athletic Association has been called for Friday afternoon, to elect a manager of the football team and other officers of the association.

JEFFRIES GIVES HUNTING PARTY

Entertains Mayor of Los Angeles and Others on a Long Trip in West.

PORTLAND, Ore., Sept. 6.—Big Jim Jeffries, world's ex-heavyweight champion, and 22 guests arrived yesterday morning at the headquarters of the south fork of McKenzie River, where for two weeks Jeffries will entertain his friends in what the veteran pugilist says are the best hunting grounds in the United States. Mayor Harper and Police Commissioner Lewis of Los Angeles are in the party; so is Mrs. Jeffries. Eugene (Ore.) guides are in charge.

This is the second of Jeffries' annual pilgrimages to Oregon hunting grounds. It is a 1200-mile journey from Los Angeles to Eugene, where the cavalcade leaves the railroad, but the ex-champion says the pursuit of elk, deer, bear and monster trout on the high, remote watershed between Eastern and Western Oregon is worth a trip across the continent.

AN INNOVATION AT RIDING CLUB

Horse Show Feature Will Be Added to Regular Program on the North Side.

An innovation to be introduced Sunday by the Gentlemen's Driving and Riding Club is the adding to the day's program of a horse-show feature. This is to consist of a walk trot and canter class for short and long-tailed horses.

The move was taken up on the request of a large number of the club members, who were of the opinion that this would be in line with the policy of the club to aid everything that furthered the objects of the association. Likewise it is thought that it will prove a very popular part of the program.

SPORTS ARE ON AT EXPOSITION

Great List of Athletes Competing Today at Jamestown for the Championship Honors.

JAMESTOWN, Va., Sept. 6.—The National Athletic Championship, which will be decided this afternoon and tomorrow at the Athletic Grounds of the Exposition, will witness the greatest gathering of athletes in the history of American athletics. In quality as well as quantity the men are peerless. Every district in the Union has men entered. Missouri, Louisiana, California, the New England States, Illinois, Nebraska, Oregon and Maryland, while Manhattan bosts of the largest entry, with close on a hundred athletes trained to perfection to battle for the Irish-American, New York, Pastime and Xavier Athletic clubs. England has no representation, leaving the honor to Canada, which has a dozen men entered to represent the Union Jack at the big meet.

Ireland, never behind when there is a fight for fame and glory, will have her shamrock seeking entwinement with the boys of America in the persons of Con Leahy, the Olympic high-jump champion, and Denis Murray, Erin's speediest son.

The men who represent the Manhattan clubs are looked to for the finest feats and the most brilliant victories. In former years a national champion lacked little of the elements and conditions of a metropolitan championship meet, but the Jamesotwn affair is entirely different. Every event will be closely contested, because the meet is really the first national representative championship.

Forline of St. Louis; Parsons, Olympia A. C.; Smithson of the Mutnomah A. C. and Keating of the Irish-American Club are the fleetest of the sprinters. The honors will possibly be garnered by one of these five in the furlong, while th quartr should be won by Bailey, Cohalan or Hillman of the New York A. C., with Sheppard fast enough to give them all the running they require. The half-mile looks like a gift for Sheppard, and the race seems the only certainty of the meet, but Sheehan of Boston, who has been doing fast trials, and then there is nothing certain.

IN OUR SET

BEING LITTLE STORIES OF PEOPLE IN THE SPORT WORLD.

Jack Fifield's days as a pitcher are about over, says the Albany Argus.

Pitcher Wood and Third Baseman Ingerton of Albany will report to Cleveland Sept. 23.

Thoney has batted for .338 in the Eastern League; Joe Kelley, .346 and Catcher Byers of Baltimore, .379.

Hub Hart is hitting at a .250 clip for the White Sox. This is about 75 points better than he batted last year.

President Dovey of the Boston Nationals has bought "Strike-Out" Bushey of the Worcester (New England League) club. This is Dovey's fourth purchase there.

Umpire "Billy" Connors hopes to get back into the game as a player next season. "I prefer playing to umpiring," says he, "and think I am good for a few years yet."

There was some scoring in a game at Menominee, Mich. In seven innings the Dagget team piled up a total of 57 runs, at the same time blanking their opponents, the Talbot nine. Sixty-two hits were made off the latter's pitcher. The game was called in the seventh inning with two men out after 21 runs had been scored.

Heinie Zimmerman, the second baseman purchased by the Chicago Cubs from Wilkesbarre, is with the champions.

At Fenton a division will form to make a round-about tour to Valley Park, Eureka and thence over to House's Springs via the Big River route.

The Saturday run will be to Hillsboro, 37 miles out on the De Soto road, leaving at 3:30 p. m. and stopping for supper at Bulltown. From Hillsboro the run Sunday morning will be to House's Springs by way of the Bourne Creek road.

On Monday evening the September meeting of the club will be held.

Griffith's club may be a failure as far as pennant chances are concerned, but it can never be accused of being a quitter. When hopelessly beaten, the Yanks come out like a pack of hyenas and fight every inch of the ground.

The Yankees will practically have New York all to themselves for the rest of the season, as the Giants have less than 40 games to be settled on the home grounds just before they start West on their final trip, which ends in Philadelphia.

YOUTH ASKS FOR FURLOUGH TO CLAIM FORTUNE LEFT

Young Police Clerk Will Go to St. Paul Where Uncle Died.

Believing that he is the heir to an estate of $50,000 left by Walter Burke of St. Paul, Minn., John J. Burke, a police clerk in the Wyoming Street Station, has asked Chief of Police Creecy for a furlough.

Burke is 20 years of age, the son of Patrolman Michael Burke, and resides at 2705 Wyoming street. He says Walter Burke was his uncle. His interest in the estate is based on inquiries which he understands Public Administrator V. Seymour of St. Paul has been making for him.

Young Burke was appointed a police telephone operator April 15, 1903, working for some time in various districts in that capacity. He was made a third-class clerk April 1, 1906. It is understood at the Wyoming Station that he will resign if he substantiates his claim.

KILLS MAN WHO STOLE HIS WIFE AND GOES CRAZY

Fire Chief of Franklin (Ohio) Raves Continuously in His Cell.

MARRIED 12 YEARS AGO

Then Last Spring Mrs. William Miller Ran Away With a Tramp.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

FRANKLIN, O., Sept. 6.—The authorities at Lebanon still refuse to permit Mrs. Miller, wife of the Fire Chief of this city, to see her husband, who has been locked up since he killed Joe Littleler in a station-house cell here Tuesday. She weeps continuously and is at times hysterical.

Although the tragedy was caused by Mrs. Miller's unfaithfulness, she now declares she loves her husband and that she wishes to make his burden as light as possible.

"I know my going away with Littleler was a great mistake," she said today, "but Will and I were getting settled down again. O, I know now that I love my husband. When he left the house Tuesday I had no idea that he was intending anything rash. He kissed me good-by, and said he was going to Middleton to see our daughter, Fannie, who is visiting there.

"Monday night he had been restless, however. He made strange sounds in his sleep, and when I shook him and asked him what was the matter he said his brain was all in a whirl."

Were Married 12 Years Ago.

Miller and his wife were married 12 years ago. She is a handsome brunette. They have two little sons and a 12-year-old daughter. Joe Littleler formerly had a wife in Franklin, but would not live with her. He sent her to her home in Cedarville, O. He went to work for Miller and roomed and boarded at the Miller home.

One evening last July Miller was struck on the head with a brick while he was passing a dark corner on his way home. His skull was fractured, and his wife said today that he has had flighty spells ever since.

Littleler was suspected by Miller, but no motive could then be shown. When Littleler enticed Mrs. Miller away to Springfield Aug. 8 and lived with her there, Miller determined to place the charge of assault with intent to kill against him. Miller went to Springfield with officers and met Littleler with Mrs. Miller. Both men carried revolvers, but the presence of officers prevented trouble.

Littleler was lodged in the police station in Franklin Monday night. Miller and his wife made up and were apparently getting along well.

Shot His Heart Out.

Then Tuesday morning Miller gained access to the cellroom from the Fire Department. He entered coolly and seeing Littleler, exclaimed: "D—n you, now I've got you where I want you!"

Littleler was advancing toward Miller but when he heard the threat he tried to dodge under a wooden bed, crying, "For God's sake, don't shoot; please don't shoot!"

Miller's answer was to shove a double-barreled shotgunt between the bars and discharge both barrels, blowing the man's heart out and terribly lacerating his neck and breast. Then he walked out, carefully locking the door behind him, and sat down on a bunk near the horses in the fire engine room.

Deputy Marshal Clint Sinnard placed Miller under arrest. Miller was a raving maniac apparently. When handcuffed he struggled about the fire engine room, uttering unintelligible shrieks. He was removed to Lebanon by Marshal Lane and deputies. He continues to rave and beat the air with his fists.

Letter to Her Husband.

When Mrs. Miller first heard of the tragedy, she exclaimed: "Heavens, is Joe shot?" and went into hysterics.

When Mrs. Miller and Littleler were arrested at Springfield the following note addressed to her husband, was found in her possession:

"Dearest Will: I don't know whether you will read this or not, but hope you can forgive me. I am anxious to get back home, and really I love you. Little Hugh stands at the window and says: 'I wonder when papa is coming,' and that makes me sad. I a mcoming home as soon as I can."

80 YEARS A MASON HE IS NOW 106 YEARS OLD

J. B. McGregor, Who Is Well Preserved, Will Celebrate His Birthday Today.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

MOUNT SUNAPEE, N. H., Sept. 6.—James Bellows McGregor, said to be the oldest Mason in the world, will celebrate his one hundred and sixth birthday with a public reception today. He was born in 1801 a mile from where he now lives, near here. He is enjoying good health for one so aged. He can read ordinary print, has a remarkable memory and is nearly as well preserved as a man of 60 or 70 years.

His joining of the Masonic order in 1827 makes him a member of 80 years' standing and the oldest Mason on record in the world. Mount Vernon Lodge A. F. & A. M. of Newport will attend the celebration in a body and the countryside will do him honor.

Police Clerk Sees a Fortune.

John J. Burke, clerk in the Dayton Street Police Station, has gone to St. Paul to investigate the $65,000 estate of Walter Burke of that city, whose heirs he supposes himself and his father, Michael Burke, a special officer, to be.

GOES TO THE WORKHOUSE AND NOT TO STEPMOTHER'S FUNERAL

Man Who Refuses to Work Sent Away Because of Threats He Made.

Instead of "making a funeral" of his stepmother, Mrs. Wilhelmina Eibecker of 7005 Virginia avenue, as he boasted, George Kuhlmann, 23 years of age, was sent to the Workhouse.

Mrs. Eibecker had George before Justice of the Peace Kleiber Friday morning, to whom she related the young man's boast. She also told the justice that her stepson had more explicitly threatened her with death unless she furnished him with more car fare than she could afford to give one who would not work.

JOY FOR THE PRESIDENT; THERE'S A NAVAL BATTLE ON

Mississippi River Boats Fight for Honor of Carrying Him to Memphis.

President Roosevelt ought to be happy. There is a naval battle going on between three boats over the question of which is to carry him from Keokuk, Io., to St. Louis and Memphis.

Officials of the lighthouse tender Lilly are furnishing the boat for the President to board. Gen. Mackenzie of the snagboat that bears his name is quite positive that his boat will carry the chief executive. The Mississippi River Commission insists that its boat, the Mississippi be used.

It is up to the President to decide the fight.

Women troubled with fainting spells, hot flashes, nervous irritability, backache, the "blues," they cannot hope to be happy or popular, and advancement in either home, business or social life is impossible.

The cause of these troubles, however, yields quickly to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from native roots and herbs. It acts at once upon the organ afflicted and the nerve centers, dispelling effectually all those distressing symptoms. No other medicine in the country has received such unqualified indorsement or has such a record of cures of female ills as has

"YELLOW DOG" SALOON CLOSED

State's Attorney Says Scene of Many Murders Shall Not Be Reopened.

Following the murder of Dave Ross, negro proprietor of the notorious "Yellow Dog" saloon near East St. Louis, and the shooting of Cass. Murphy, a negro frequenter, the doors of the place have been nailed shut under orders from State's Attorney Tecklenberg. He says the saloon will not be allowed to reopen.

The tragedy which resulted in the closing of the notorious saloon, occurred last Monday, Ross being shot and killed by Abe Stanford, a negro, a few hours after Ross had shot Cass Murphy, Stanford's half-brother. Stanford has not yet been captured. Murphy is at St. Mary's Hospital and will probably recover.

Several murders have been committed at the soloon and the surrounding territory in recent years.

Being on the Brooklyn road, just across the streeet from the East St. Louis limits, it was outside the jurisdiction of East St. Louis officers and had to be watched by the Sheriff's force. This is the third time that the place has been closed by the State's Attorney following assaults and murders.

East St. Louis News

Louis F. Tissier has resigned as clerk of the Retail Merchants' Association and has accepted a position as teller of the new Citizens' National Bank, which will open for business at 318 Missouri avenue soon. The board of directors will name a new secretary at the next meeting of the association.

The steamer City of Savannah, elaborately decorated and with banners flying announcing that East St. Louis is still on the river map, will carry the members of the East St. Louis Commercial Club to a point up the river, where it will join in the parade in honor of President Roosevelt on "Roosevelt day," Oct. 2. The contract for the boat was closed Thursday night at the Commercial Club meeting. A committee from the club will also be on the reception committee which will receive the President when he enters St. Louis.

The funeral of Mrs. Elizabeth O'Neil, 60 years old, who died Thursday night at St. Mary's Hospital of senility, will be held Saturday at 9 a. m., from St. Patrick's Church to Mt. Carmel Cemetery. She is survived by her husband, Thomas O'Neil, and two grown sons.

The East St. Louis grand jury completed its work and adjourned Thursday afternoon, after being in session eight days. No recommendations of any sort were made in the report to Judge Moyers, the report simply giving the number of witnesses examined and the number of indictments returned and ignored. During the eight days the jury examined 140 witnesses, returned 31 indictments and ignored nine. No gambling or "lid" indictments were returned and no witnesses were heard touching these matters. Just before adjournment the members of the grand jury presented Foreman Hauss with a meerschaum pipe. The clerks, C. B. McCoy of East St. Louis and J. C. Becker of Freeburg, were each presented with a fountain pen.

William L. Graves, 45 years old, died Friday morning in an ambulance while he was being taken to St. Mary's Hospital from Bock's saloon, 208 Missouri avenue. He was suffering from alcoholism and was found in an unconscious condition in the cellar under the saloon. The body was taken to the Degan-Doussard Morgue, where an inquest will be held Friday afternoon. He has no relatives known in East St. Louis.

The body of Miss Freda Walters, 23 years old, who died Friday morning at the Henrietta Hospital of typhoid fever, will be taken to her home in Lenzburg this afternoon for burial. She is a daughter of Henry Walters of Lenzburg and had been employed at the home of Attorney T. M. Webb, 1609 State street.

The funeral of Theresa Kurts, the 3-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Kurts of 2229 Kansas avenue, who died Thursday from burns received Wednesday when she fell into a tub of boiling water, was held Friday morning from St. Elizabeth's Church to St. Henry's Cemetery.

EAST SIDERS FIND NEW WAY TO REDUCE PRICE OF LIVING

They Wait for Farmers' Wagons to Break Down on the Way to Market.

When a load of cabbage was overturned at a bad crossing at Fifteenth street and Collinsville avenue, East St. Louis, Thursday evening, hungry citizens made a raid on the sauerkraut vegetables, and when the farmer who owned them came back with another wagon there wasn't a head left.

This sort of thing has happened several times of late and farmers are up in arms. They say the trouble is that there are no good roads by which they can safely pass through the city.

The Council got busy when the farmers asked for better roads. Instead of ordering one street repaired at a time they decreed that Ninth, Thirteenth and Fifteenth streets should be paved simultaneously.

The result is that all of the roads from the truck-garden belt are now torn up and enterprising citizens stand at the corners waiting for a wagon to break down so they can play "snatch grabs" and so reduce the cost of living expenses.

MISSING PATROLMAN IN UNIFORM SOUGHT BY POLICE

Charges Preferred Against Man Who Has Been Away Two Days.

Webster J. Harding, a probationary patrolman attached to the Dayton Street Station, is mysteriously missing from his beat and his boarding house. He is supposed to be in full uniform.

He left the latter place, 4048 North Market street, after breakfast Wednesday morning to return to duty but did not go back to his boarding house, as usual, at 11 o'clock that morning to sleep.

Wednesday night and Thursday he failed to report at roll call. Capt. Schoppe reported these facts to Chief Creecy Friday and the Chief ordered charges prefered against Harding.

A suit of citizens' clothing, which Harding wears when off duty, is still in his room at the boarding house. He is supposed to have his club, star and revolver with him.

WEATHER INDICATIONS.

TRADING LIGHT, PRICES LOWER

Hill Stocks, Although Opening Weak, Showed Marked Improvement in the First Hour.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Sept. 6.—The volume of trading at the opening of the market today was light. ..ails were generally lower. Canadian Pacific opened half a point higher than yesterday's closing and was the solitary advance on the list.

The Hill stocks were weak. Great Northern preferred opening at 127½, a full point under yesterday's close. Northern Pacific was sympathetically weak, losing a half at the opening.

After the first half hour, however, Great Northern went to 129 on brisk trading, and Northern Pacific also showed a slight bullish tendency.

C., M. & St. P. also showed strength in the first hour, advancing a half over yesterday's close. The Watson failure, which was expected to cause some flutter, has evidently had no effect on today's trading, as the Hill issues are firm. In the Industrials Copper preferred and American Smelter were the most active, and had a slight downward movement.

Besides declaring its regular dividend the American Car and Foundry Co. showed the largest quarter's earnings in its history.

Consolidated Gas was one of the very few stocks that opened high, jumping 2 points on the opening.

NEW YORK, Sept. 6, 1 p. m.—There was a pronounced bull movement in the second hour's trading, and the railway issues were especially strong. Delaware & Hudson scored an advance of 8 points from the opening and lead the list.

Northern Pacific made an advance of 3¾ points to noon.

Great Northern preferred was also active and was moved up 2¼ points from the opening quotation.

Union Pacific was strong and advanced 1¼ points.

There were lesser, but general advances over the entire list.

Industrials were steady with Smelter and Amalgamated leading.

Sales to noon, 415,000 shares.

OCEANS OF SOFT WATER IN THE NEAR-DROUTH SECTION

Western Kansas Finds Relief in Wells to the Second Strata.

GARDEN CITY, Kan., Sept. .—The housewife of this section, where cisterns are even more scarce than rain, is to have the soft-water problem solved. Wells, the usual source of the hardest of hard water, are to bring relief.

Through the digging of several deep wells it has been found that soft water in unlimited quantities waits only the pumping to surface. Several outfits which have been operating in the oil fields digging wells, have moved to this section and now soft water wells have become quite the thing.

The soft water is found at the second strata below a bed of impervious blue clay. When brought to surface it is as "swashy" and softy as water from a cistern.

There is talk now of sinking large wells for the city supply. In this way, fine soft water will be pumped through the mains which heretofore have been filled with a brackish, "brittle" water.

OKLAHOMA DEALERS PREDICT WINTER COAL FAMINE AGAIN

CIMARRON, O. T., Sept .—Cimarron coal dealers are anxious that the people be brought to realize the gravity of the present coal situation and what will happen if proper precautions are not taken. Next winter there is going to be a shortage in the coal supply. Even now, word has been received from coal companies that they can make no promises to deliver to the dealers and the prices are already high. Just as soon as any cold weather comes there will be a shortage and prices will go out of sight.

LIVESTOCK.

Receipts—Cattle, 2500; hogs, 6000; sheep, 1500; horses and mules, 200.

CATTLE—Receipts were about evenly divided between the native and Southern divisions. The bulk of the supply consisted of fair to pretty good kinds. The market was dull at weak to fair prices for all classes.

WHEAT CLOSED SHARPLY HIGHER

Recovered From Weak Start and Scored Cent Advance—Export Demand Strong.

DAMAGE STILL REPORTED

Corn Quiet and Firm and Oats Full Cent Higher—Cash Demand Strong.

Local wheat was quite strong late in Friday's session and closed 1¼c to 1½c higher for the day.

Liverpool cables closed ½d to 1½d higher on spot wheat and ¼d to ⅜d higher on the futures. Antwerp wheat closed 1⅞c to 3¾c higher, Berlin wheat ⅝c higher and Budapest wheat ¾c lower. Argentine shipments of wheat were 648,000 bu, against 400,000 bu last week and 824,000 bu a year ago. The Argentine wheat market is firm and the demand inactive. Arrivals from the interior are very light and the quality satisfactory.

The local market was broad and very nervous tday, and was sensitive to any large orders on either side. The undertone on the whole was firm, and at times heavy offerings were reasonably well absorbed. The opening was weak, mainly on the lower offerings at other markets and the heavy movement and still increasing stocks. Prices fluctuated nervously at somewhat easier levels for awhile, but towards the middle of the session advanced sharply on the reports of a strong export demand. Acceptances from all Continental points, Berlin, Antwerp, Hamburg, Marseilles and also from the United Kingdom were very liberal, and a very large business was done. The New York market was very strong on this feature, which also created a firm tone in practically all the markets of the country. One house alone is said to have worked 60 loads today, and the total amount worked estimated at 150 loads. Chicago and Kansas City also did a large export business, and foreign damage reports were again received.

This, with reports of spotted and inferior wheat being received in the Northwest and Canada and that scattered rains are again general and are delaying harvesting and damaging wheat, caused a sharp upturn. December wheat opened ⅝@¾c lower at 96½c, declined to 96¼c, advanced to 96⅝c, declined to 95¾c, advanced to 96½c, back to 96⅛c, and was bid up to 97¼c. May wheat opened ½c lower at 101⅞c, and advanced to $1.03@1.03⅛.

The late trading was rather quiet, and prices moved up an additional fraction. Trading late in the day was light and prices slow, and values were sustained near the high levels. December wheat advanced to 97⅜c, declined to 97⅛c, fluctuated between 97⅜c and 97⅝c and closed with bids at 97⅜@97½c. May wheat advanced steadily to $1.04, and closed at $1.03¾@1.03⅞ sellers.

There was a good demand for cash wheat and prices were strong. Local receipts of wheat were 99,607 bu, against 52,995 bu last year, and shipments were 61,775 bu. Chicago receipts of wheat were 210,265 bu, against 84,000 bu last year, and shipments were 72,732 bu. Clearances of wheat and flour for the week were 2,923,000 bu, and today's clearances were 436,000 bu.

Corn was quiet. There was some speculative selling at the opening, based mainly on the lower opening at Chicago, but it was mostly long liquidation and was soon exhausted. A fair demand appeared later on reports that farmers are selling very little wheat, the movement from some sections being already exhausted, and farmers in many sections are said to be storing large quantities of corn away. Some very discouraging reports as to the condition and probable yield of corn were also received and prices rose a fraction. Trading was light, however, and the interest on both sides apparently small. Comparatively few sales were made, and the close was ¼@⅜c higher for the day. Cables closed ¾d to 1¼d higher on the spot corn and ⅜d higher on the futures. Argentine shipments of corn were 1,251,000 bu, against 1,462,000 bu last week and 2,202,000 bu a year ago.

The cash demand for corn was very strong, offerings light and prices were higher. Local receipts of corn were 100,100 bu, against 36,230 bu last year, and shipments were 113,850 bu. Receipts of corn at Chicago were 328,721 bu, against 415,200 bu last year, and shipments were 113,887 bu. Today's clearances of corn were 44,000 bu and the total for the week 507,000 bu.

There was a quite good trade in oats and the tone was strong. Offerings were well taken and under some liberal short covering the influences being the strength in other grains, and some very pessimistic threshing and weather reports, prices advanced sharply. The close was practically at the day's high point, and 1@1⅛c higher for the day.

There was a strong demand for cash oats, with prices higher. Local receipts of oats were 227,200 bu, against 142,400 bu last year, and shipments were 114,499 bu. Chicago receipts of oats were 390,000 bu, against 267,000 bu last year, and shipments were 256,872 bu. No oats were cleared from the seaboard today.

Following is the Modern Miller crop outlook: Little wheat is being offered by winter wheat farmers, who are busy preparing the soil for fall planting, or are holding for higher prices. South of the Ohio River the crop is closely marketed, as it is also further north, in sections where the yields were small.

Kansas corn reports forwarded from Topeka say: "Kansas corn damage reaches further north than indicated yesterday. From Hutchinson to Emporia 60 per cent would be high. Emporia to Topeka better, possibly 70. Trade alarmed over outlook. Country between Solomon and Republic rivers was fired by heat. Not a half crop expected.

Minneapolis stocks decreased 925,000 bu and Duluth 525,000 bu for the week. Following are the Northwestern car lots: Minneapolis, 127, against 117 last year; Duluth, 39, against 112 last year; Winnipeg, 21, against 151 last year.

FLOUR—Receipts were 5450 bbls; shipments, 12,300 bbls. Quote soft winter flour, patents, $4.20@4.40; straight, $4.10@4.15; extra fancy, $3.70@3.85, in wood; low to medium grades, in jute, $2.80@3.10; hard jute sacks, patents, $3.95@4.20; straight at $3.80@3.90; clear at $3.95@4.20; low grade at $2.40@2.70; spring patents at $4.75@4.90 in jute.

HAY—Receipts, 506 tons local and 255 tons through; shipments, 275 tons. Quote old timothy hay, choice, $21@21.50; No. 1, $18@19; No. 2, $13 to $14; No. 3, $9 to $11. New timothy hay, choice, $17 to $18; No. 1, $15 to $16.50; No. 2, $12 to $13; clover hay old or new, choice, $15; No. 1, $12 to $14; choice mixed, $16 to $16.50; No. 1 mixed, $14.50 to $15, No. 2 clover mixed, $12 to $13. Prairie hay, choice, $11; No. 1, $10.50; No. 2, $9.50; receipts light and demand good.

The opening sales in Liverpool were made at a decline from their close of yesterday of 6 points in a steady market. Prices were expected to be lower by from 5½ to 8 points, in order to have agreed with the New York closing. The New York market this morning opened at slightly better figures than the close last night. First sales were made at an advance of from 3 to 6 points. Opening sales as follows: Oct., 12.37; Dec., 12.46; Jan., 12.54; March, 12.53.

ROOSEVELT JR. FLEES BEFORE ARMY OF GIRLS

Bombarded by Admiring Women, Kermit Deserts His Cavalry Command.

WAS TOO COY TO FLIRT

Elderly Lady Invaded His Tent and He Said That Was the Limit.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, Sept. 6.—Kermit Roosevelt, the President's son, who started out on a cavalry march to learn to be a soldier like papa was, deserted his command and beat an ignominious retreat before the enemy. The enemy in this case was an army of women and girls who insisted on lionizing young Roosevelt. He stood the fire until one woman invaded his tent to kiss him before he got out of bed, and then he said he guessed he had enough and departed, presumably for Oyster Bay.

Kermit started with the Thirteenth United States Cavalry to make the march from Fort Leavenworth, Kan., to Fort Sheridan, Ill. Throughout the march young Roosevelt was the target for admiring glances from women and young ladies who used every possible subterfuge to obtain an audience with him, but Kermit was coy. At Joslin, Ill., the tent incident occurred, and it was in the nature of a last straw.

The squadron of cavalry with which young Roosevelt rode is marching between Elgin and Chicago and is expected to arrive at Fort Sheridan Friday.

Women Kept Annoying Him.

Lieut. Philip Sheridan said today: "We have not heard from Kermit since he left us at Joslin, Ill., two weeks ago. All along the march he was lionized and great crowds would visit the camp to see him. They would not leave him alone even at mess, and curious people would pull back the flaps of the tent where he was eating.

"Early one morning while we were at Joslin an elderly woman invaded his tent while he was still in cot. She patted him on the cheek and called him a 'dear boy.' She was only acting in a motherly spirit, and seemed proud that the President had such a fine son. However, that was the last straw for Kermit, and he said that he would take a train to Chicago, and we have not seen him since."

Kermit joined the cavalry at Fairfield, Io., and rode with it for seven days. He stood the hardships of the march with evident enjoyment, the officers declare, until he was forced to flee from the women and girls.

UNDER GEORGIA'S NEW LID LAW, THERE'LL BE NO WINE AT COMMUNION

Grand Jury Warns Deacons That They Will Be Indicted if They Violate Statute.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

ATLANTA, Ga., Sept. 6.—Under a strict construction of the prohibition law which goes into effect in Georgia Jan. 1, 1908, it is held it will be unlawful to administer wine at the communion table. This feature of the law is causing loud protests.

Grand juries throughout the State have adopted the following resolutions:

"After Jan. 1, 1908, every minister who hands sacramental wine to his members will subject himself to as many indictments as there are members.

"Every deacon who hands the sacramental wine to the members of the church will subject himself to as many indictments as there are members.

"We petition the General Assembly of Georgia to make such amendments to the law as will allow the Christian people of this State to worship God according to the dictates of their own conscience without violating the laws of the State."

LOST HIS TEETH AND A COAT

Cap'n John Made the Air Blue When He Found His Molars Gone.

Capt. John W. Hamilton, veteran Mississippi River pilot, made the air around the Calhoun wharfboat a profound Prussian blue Thursday when he picked up another man's coat and couldn't find his false teeth.

The fact that the captain was at the time lacking a few molars and incisors did not interfere with the distinctness of his enunciation when he flew into a real swash-buckling rage.

He had been in Alton and on his return stopped off at the wharfboat to chat with some friends and get a bite. He hung up his coat, somebody took it, and the captain, as he was bidding farewell, absent-mindedly took somebody else's jacket and he started to search for the artificial ivories, for he thought he might need them on his way home.

Car Fire Frightens Passengers.

Flames bursting through the floor of a Broadway car, near Elwood street, threw ten men and women in a wild rush to get out, about 8 p. m. Thursday. Nobody was injured. An overheated motor started the blaze. Engines 44, 34 and 28 put out the fire. The motorman, Samuel McConnell, 308 Salisbury street, stuck to his post until he brought the car to a stop.

Millinery Men Banquet.

About 125 members of the National Millinery Travelers' Association attended the semi-annual banquet of the organization at the Jefferson Hotel Thursday night. The speakers were F. W. Crandall, Leo Levis, I. B. Rosenthal, Louis Blase, Daniel Porter, J. L. Birnbaum, H. P. Folk, Samuel Hibbetts and Ralph Goldsticker.

EARLE TRIANGLE CALLED 2 FOOLS AND ONE BRUTE

"Artistic Temperament" Cowardly Excuse to Gratify Passion.

DESECRATION OF LOVE

Nixola Greeley-Smith Says "Affinity" Is Apology for Brutality.

BY NIXOLA GREELEY-SMITH.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Sept. 6.—Ferdinand P. Earle, the eccentric artist of Orange County, New York, who shipped his wife and little son from New York yesterday that the woman may get a divorce in France and enable him to marry him to his "affinity," who has made one of a queer triangular household for some time past, is the latest exponent of the much-exploited "artistic temperament."

William Ellis Corey, the Steel Trust president, who compelled his wife of 20 years to seek a divorce that he might make Mabelle Gilman mistress of his millions, is, when compared with Earle, a shining example of good citizenship, a porphyry pillar in the temple of home. Corey at least had the courage of his brutality. He was tired of one woman and wanted another and he took her on terms she was able to dictate. He did not attempt to justify the proceeding, but simply arranged the matter legally, as his money enabled him to do—took a certain amount of criticism stoically and had his way.

Makes Corey's Conduct Decent.

Ferdinand Pinney Earle makes the cold-blooded Corey conduct seem by comparison fairly decent. For the latter takes a coward's refuge behind high-flown phrases and queer beliefs for the simple primitive polygamy quite popular at the beginning of the race and experiencing a dangerous revival now.

In old days criminals or men pursued by their enemies fled to the churches, claiming sanctuary, and none dared to penetrate the sacred precincts to take them. Similarly, today, offenders against social laws like Earle fly to the shrine of love their very presence desecrates, and in her name claim exemption from the duties and responsibilities of ordinary men and women.

The Orange County artist bases his public exchange of wives on a belief in "prenatal affinities and the individual right to freedom of love."

It seems to me if I were a married man who had found five years of married life too long I would think one ordinary lifetime quite enough in which to find my affinities and not want my troubles to begin before birth. Perhaps, however, persons of the Earle temperament need a prenatal start to get around to all the possible affinities life holds for them.

Should Show Decency.

I think the majority of persons in New York believe in divorce under certain conditions. A life-long contract based on a frequently evanescent feeling is not always easy to carry out, and when a man and woman find they cannot live together, and by so doing help each other to happiness and usefulness, then they are, in my opinion, much better apart.

But their separation should be effected quietly and decently and not flaunted spectacularly in the face of the public, with much noise and fury about "prenatal affinities," "freedom of love" and "the artistic temperament."

The Earle triangle seems to me to be made up of two fools and one brute. Of the three the departing wife seems most to be envied, for one can wish a wife no greater happiness than to be put aside by a husband with the "affinity" mania.

Persons too often gloss their irregular love affairs by comparison with those of history and romance, finding counterparts for their "artistic temperaments" in the great crimes of history and forgetting their prototypes are more often found in the police courts.

The "artistic" temperament as a buttress for crime is overworked. "Freedom of love" as the excuse for brutality of the Earle variety, takes in vain the name of the highest and most ennobling of human passions and offenders who seek sanctuary in its holy temple should be thrown out as the money changers were of old.

ARTIST EARLE ANSWERS BY SAYING "NOTHING IMMORAL"

BY FERDINAND P. EARLE.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Sept. 6.—My wife, as well as myself, would agree at least with this one paragraph of Miss Greeley-Smith's bitter attack upon us in the Post-Dispatch:

"I think the majority of persons in New York believe in divorce under certain conditions. A lifelong contract based on a frequently evanescent feeling is not always easy to carry out, and when a man and woman find they cannot live together and by so doing help each other to happiness and usefulness, they are, in my opinion, much better apart; but their separation should be effected quietly and decently and not flaunted spectacularly in the face of the public with much noise and fury about prenatal affinities, freedom of love and the artistic temperament."

The laws of New York State do not recognize that Miss Greeley-Smith thinks. "The majority of persons believe," and give no possible chance for divorce except under the most notorious and incriminating circumstances. She must know that thousands are fettered together by bonds that strangle all that is noble and unselfish in their natures, and that numberless children are consequently the unwelcomed and handicapped offspring of such unnatural and immoral marriages. She objects simply to our conduct, as she calls it, in this affair, and deplores a "dangerous revival of primitive polygamy."

Says He Was Misquoted.

Judging from much that has been said in the papers, she has grounds for indignation and for much of her article.

But is it not rather risky to accept as Gospel truth all that one finds in the papers nowadays, especially as the papers often contradict one another as much as the Bible contradicts itself?

What authority has Miss Greeley-Smith for believing that either Mrs. Earle or I ever mentioned "prenatal affinities," or tried to make the "artistic temperament" responsible for our action? She has the authority of several of the papers which base their knowledge either on deliberate gossip or deliberately misrepresented the statements made by Mrs. Earle and myself, leaving just enough truth in them all to save them from the title of pure fiction, and just enough wit to save them from being very dry reading.

It is an almost irresistible temptation for the average reporter to feel that he can improve upon nature in his picture drawn from life, and where he finds simple and sane acts he colors them with his barberpole imagination, which finally develops legs and runs away with him.

In our case we gradually realized the inevitability of our incompatibility, and with as much justice and wisdom as we possess decided to appeal to the court for the release that my wife's family suggested to us not long after the birth of our child.

Attacks the Newspapers.

Neither Mrs. Earle nor I see any indecency in receiving into our home the person who made this sacrifice possible for me, nor any indelicacy in acting contrary to mere conventions and customs, where no outsider is harmed by such a "triangle" as Miss Greeley-Smith puts it.

Had we been schooled in the extraordinary methods of the daily papers, we might have been less frank and open when our private affairs were made known by some disloyal person possessing our confidence.

A proceeding that is held by all parties concerned to be honorable and for the best for all affected by it had better hide its rare and beautiful features under a thick coat of modesty, or the reading public is too weary in the struggle for bread and shelter to enjoy an unspiced bit of news. And the great dailies, which are run not for the public, but for profit, are forced by competition among themselves to make their news palatable to the great masses, who now suffer moral and spiritual indigestion by these very spices.

There is nothing brutal or immoral in our whole affair, except the attitude of the papers, which are the helplessly and hopelessly senseless and harmful servants of exploited millions.

I regret this notoriety for the sake of noble woman who is going partly out of my life, and for the sake of the lady who has helped me through this drama, and for the sake of the the families who do not necessarily share our views. As for Harold, he goes to loving and lovable friends and shall ever enjoy a father's protection and, we trust, shall live to vindicate his parents.
